

MID-WEEK PICTORIAL

AN ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY PUBLISHED BY The New York Times COMPANY
VOL. XII, NO. 21, JANUARY 20, 1921.
SUBSCRIPTION $5 A YEAR. (CANADA $6 A YEAR.)

PRICE TEN CENTS
[CANADA 15 CENTS]

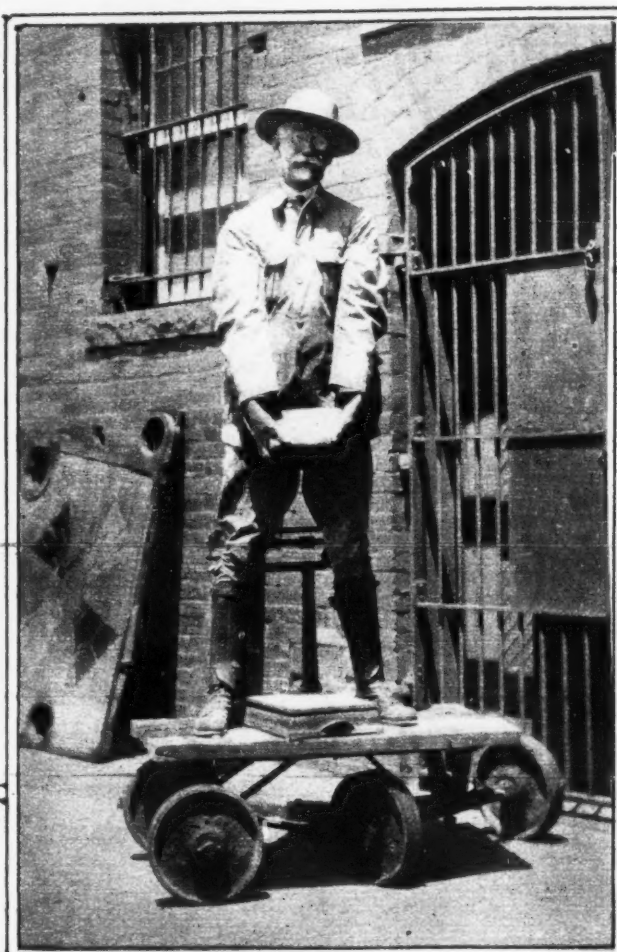

MISS DOROTHY DALTON

(Photo by Alfred Cheney Johnston.)

Flashlights

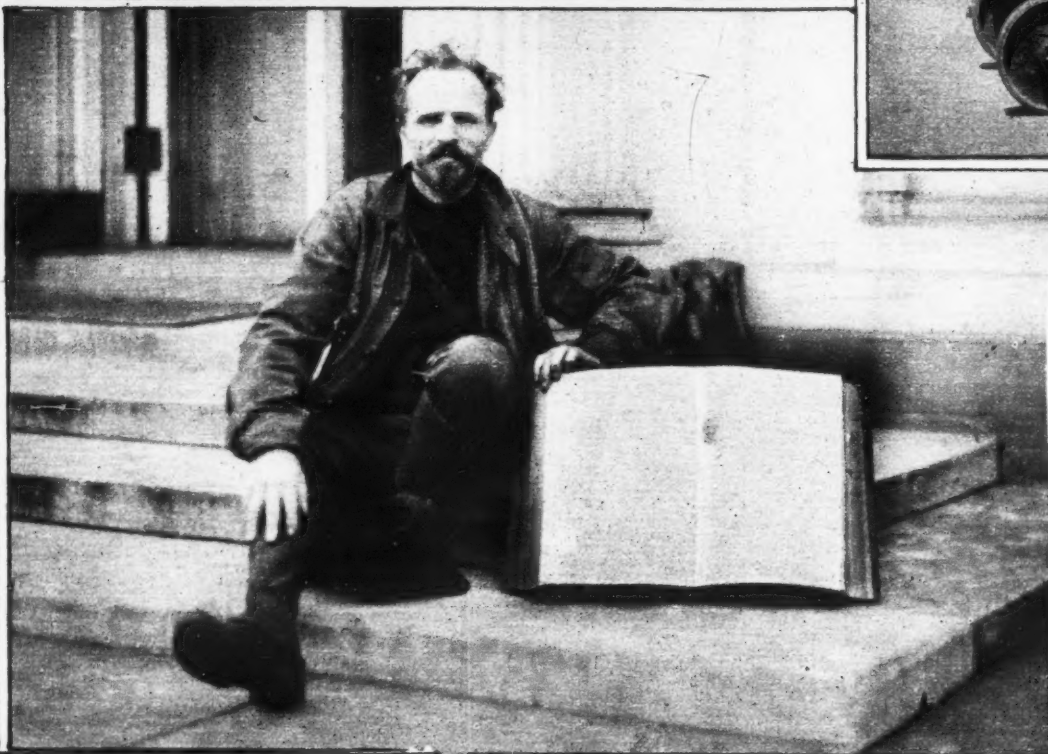

NEAR TRAGEDY
Patchstead falling in the Surbiton Hurdle Race at Hurst Park, England. The jockey, Willmot, escaped injury and remounted.
(© Wide World Photo.)

"REAL" GOLD BRICK
One of the employees of the United States Mint handling a brick of solid gold said to be worth $20,000. If so, it must weigh nearly a hundred pounds.
(Photo from S. R. Winters.)

WORLD'S GREATEST TRAVELER

Joe F. Mikulac on the steps of the Executive Offices, Washington. In twenty years of constant travel he has visited every civilized country. He has autographs of all Presidents and monarchs.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

BUST OF HARDING

Joseph La Ruffa, young sculptor, who has made this bust of the President-elect with sculptor's tools made out of toothbrush handles.

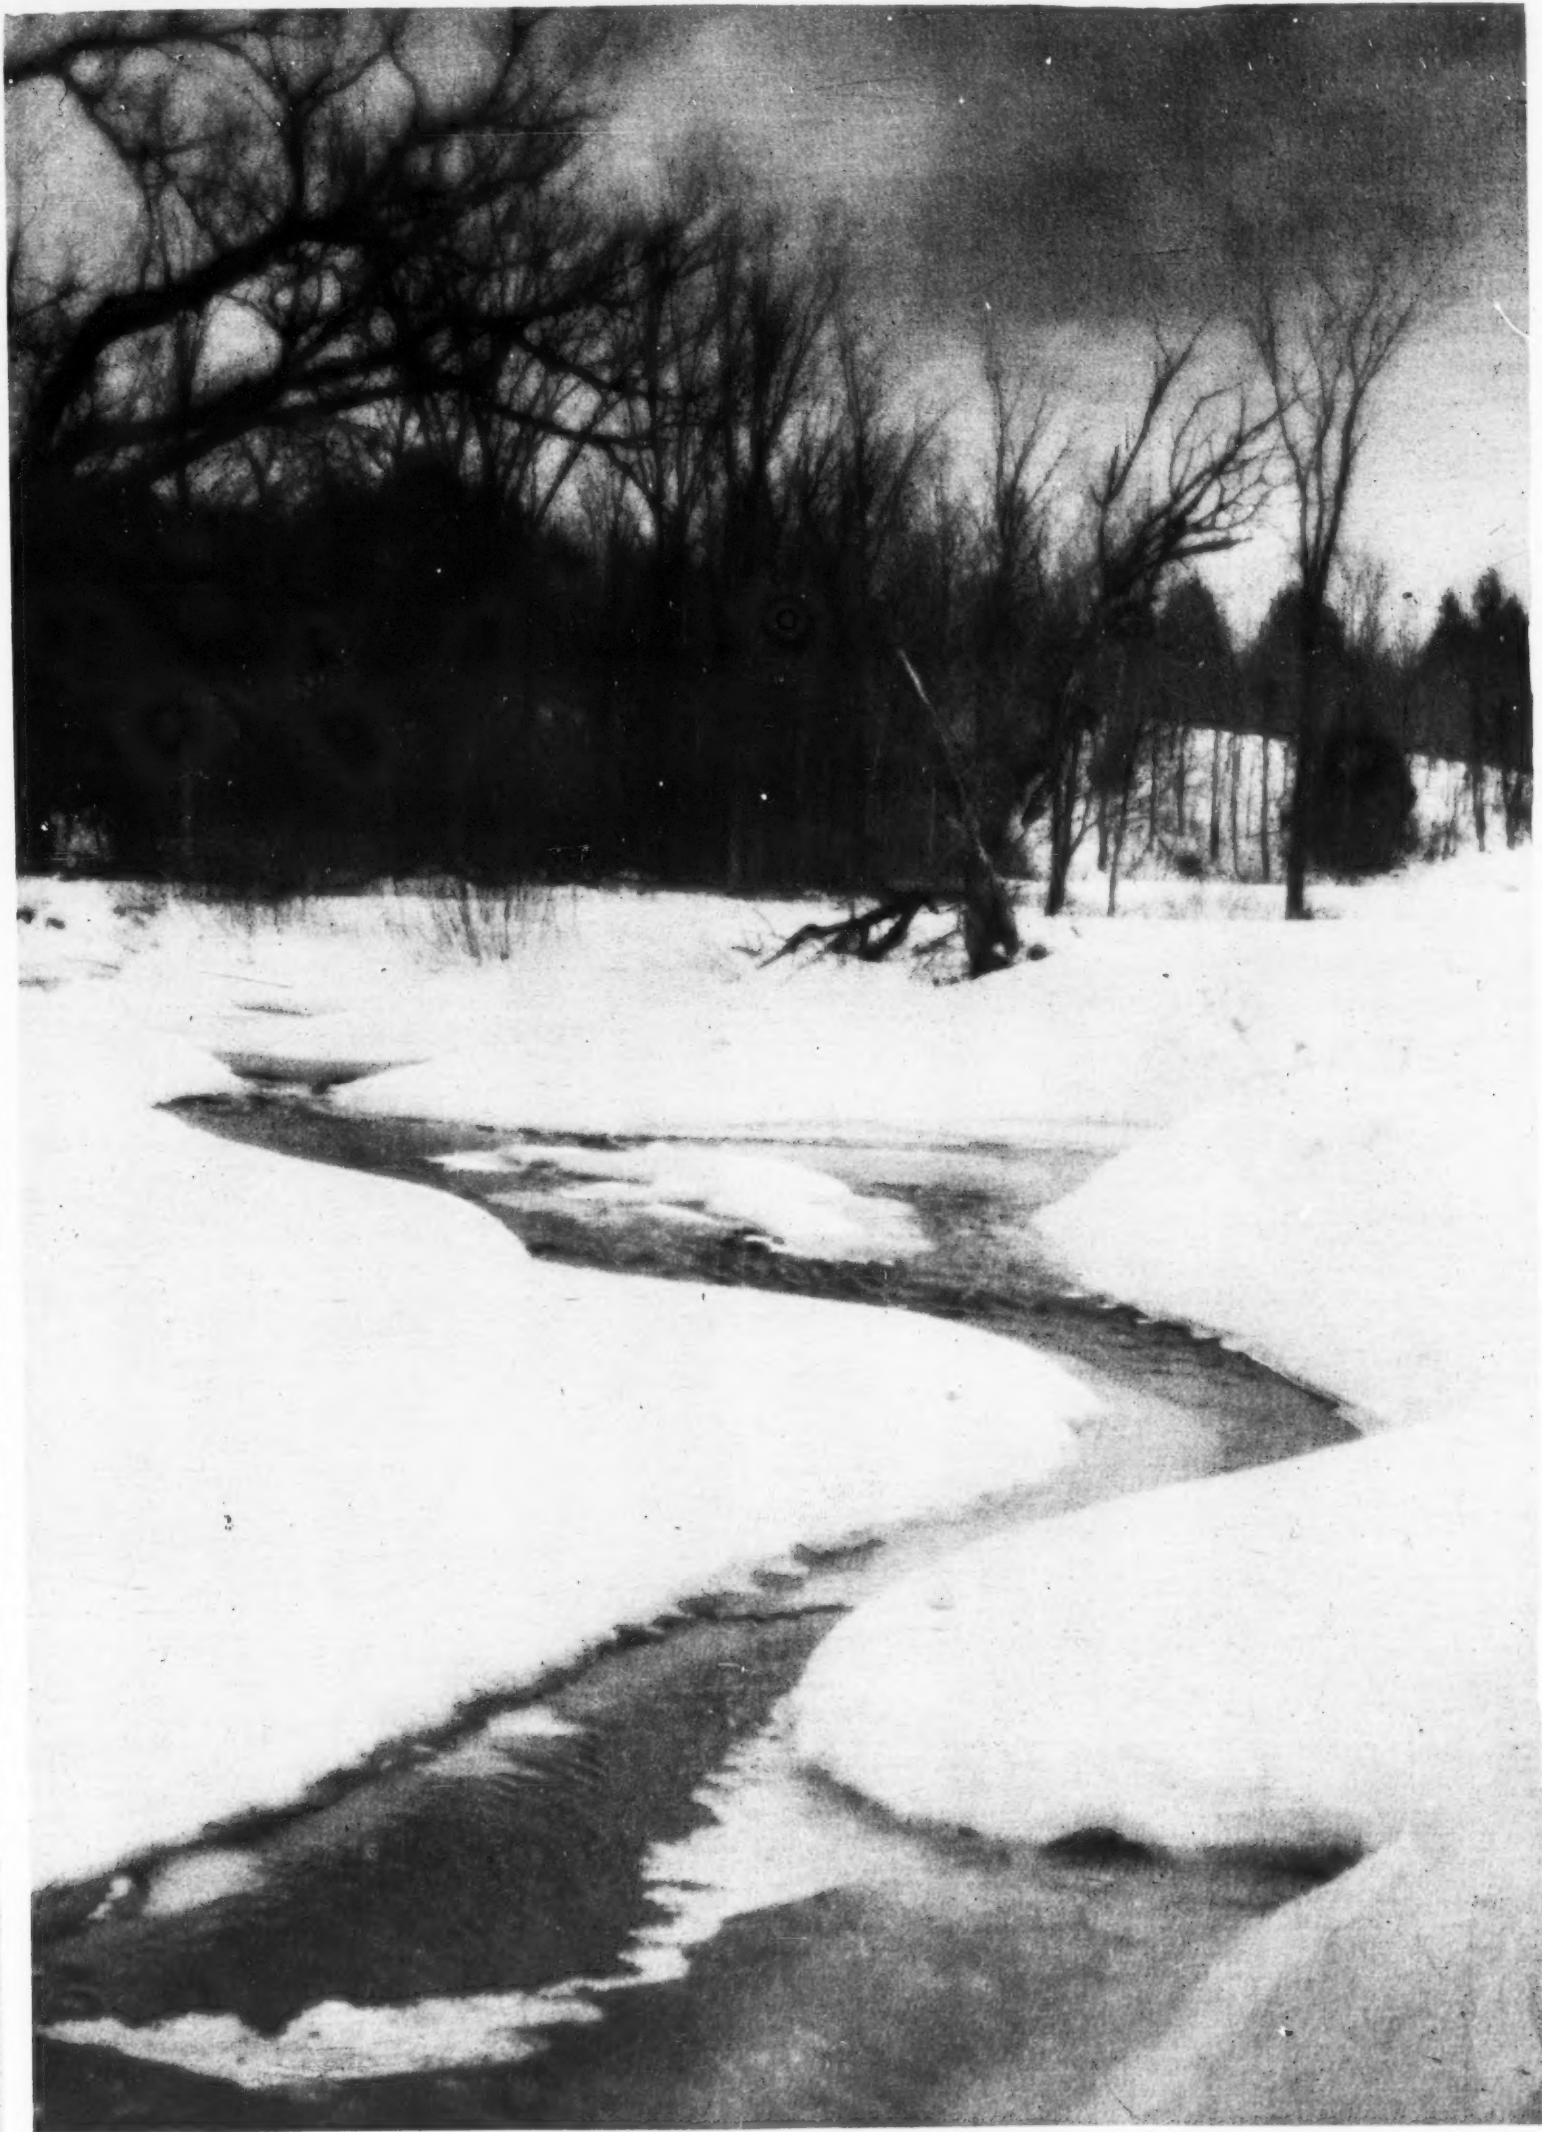

FREE COAL FOR ALL

Coal from the hold of a sunken steamer that has been washed up on the beach near Toronto, Canada. Anybody can fill his sack without paying anything and take it home. (© Colonial Press Service.)

NOTICE TO AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS:—The MID-WEEK PICTORIAL will pay $10 for the best photographic print of any big event in the United States or Canada of the week's news taken by an amateur photographer. The editors will make the choice. Any other submitted prints used will be paid for at $2 each. Prints not used will be returned only if postage is sent. Send the prints unmounted, any size. Address The MID-WEEK PICTORIAL, Room 1708, Times Building, Times Square, New York City.

MID-WEEK PICTORIAL

NEW YORK, JANUARY 20, 1921.

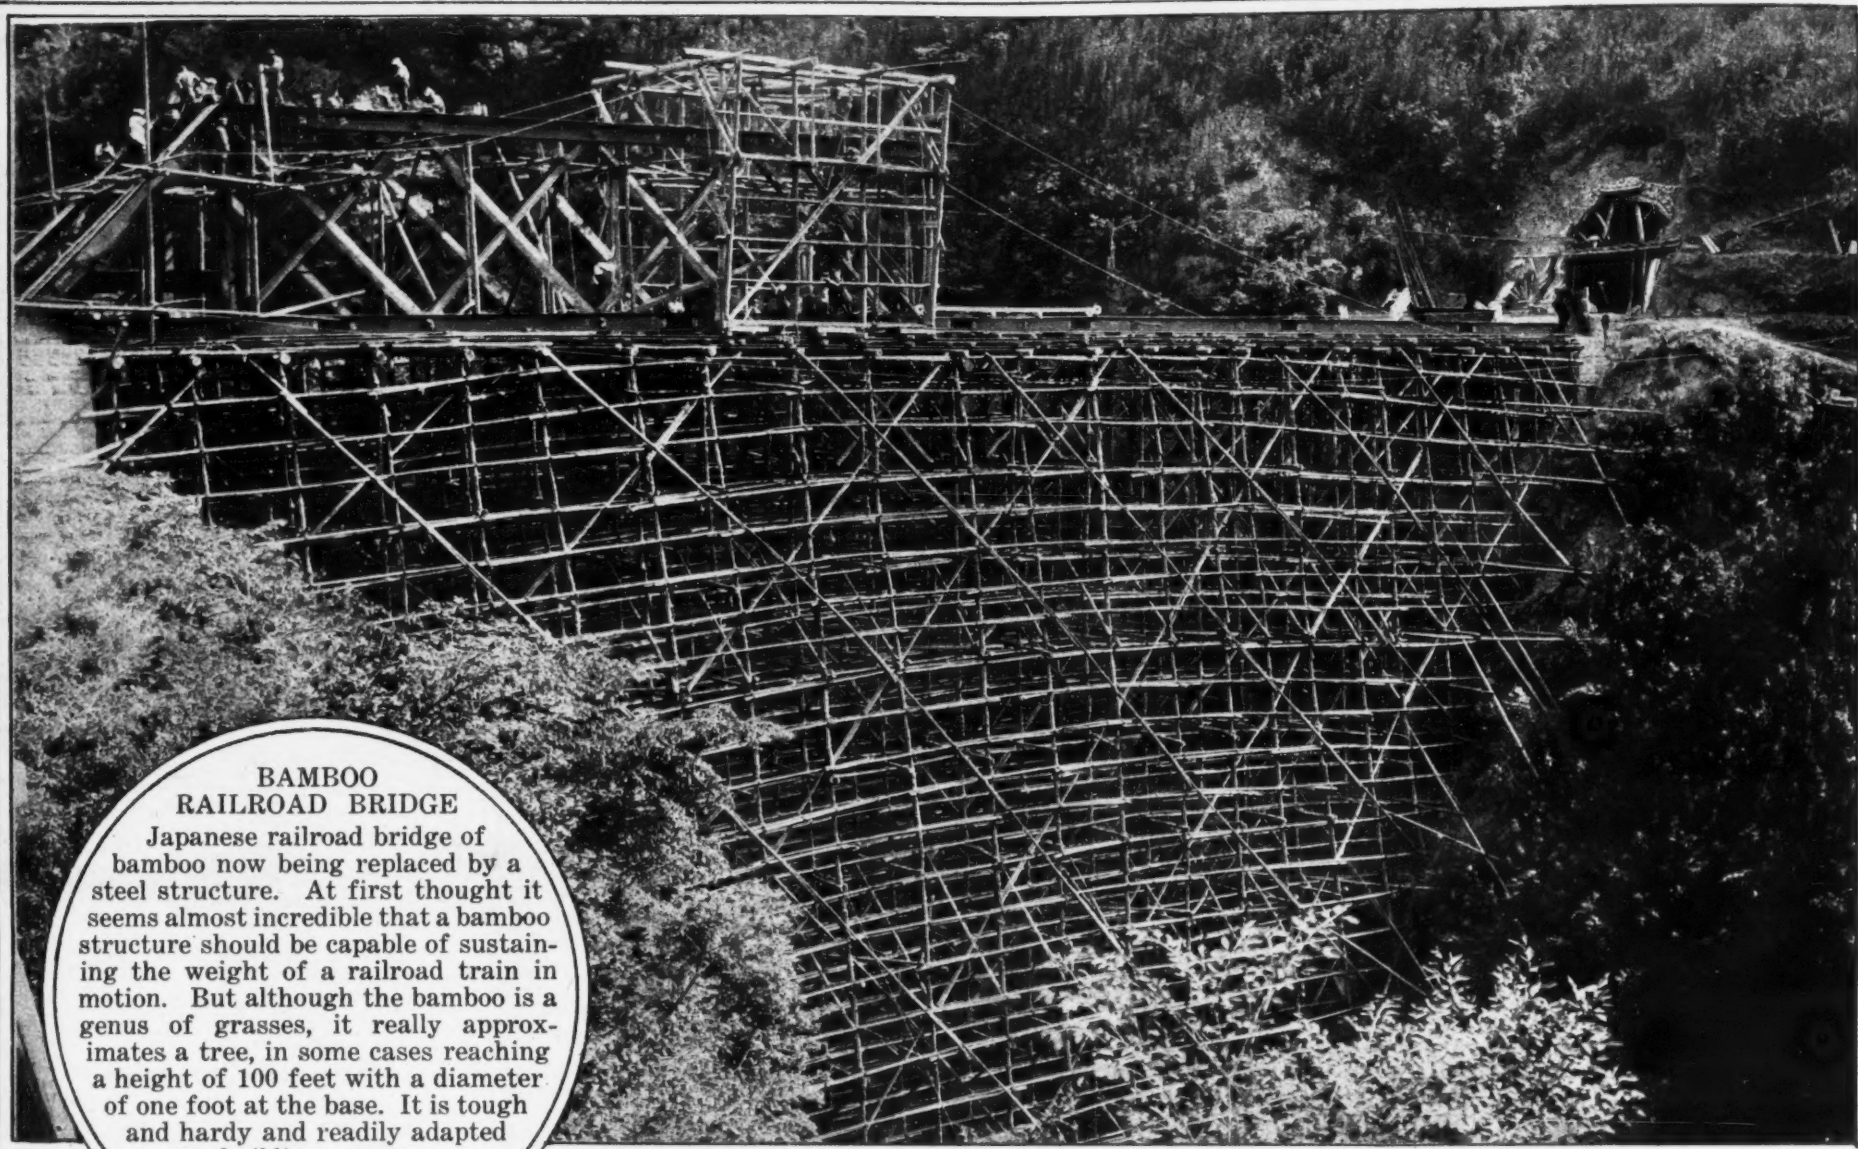

OTTAQUEECHEE VALLEY, VERMONT

as the opening of the new year found it, garmented in white beauty.

(© Post Pictures Corporation.)

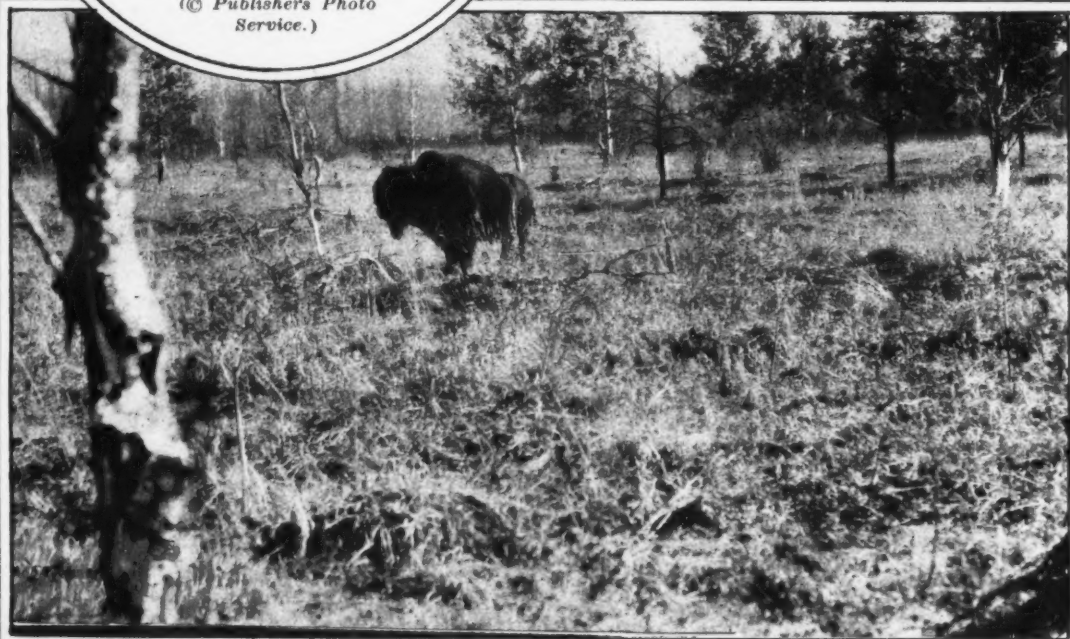

Quaint and Interesting Phases of Life—Plant, Animal and

BAMBOO RAILROAD BRIDGE

Japanese railroad bridge of bamboo now being replaced by a steel structure. At first thought it seems almost incredible that a bamboo structure should be capable of sustaining the weight of a railroad train in motion. But although the bamboo is a genus of grasses, it really approximates a tree, in some cases reaching a height of 100 feet with a diameter of one foot at the base. It is tough and hardy and readily adapted to building purposes.

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

WILD BUFFALOES

One of a herd of wild buffalo recently found by an exploring expedition in Canada. The herd comprises about a thousand, ranging around North Alberta.

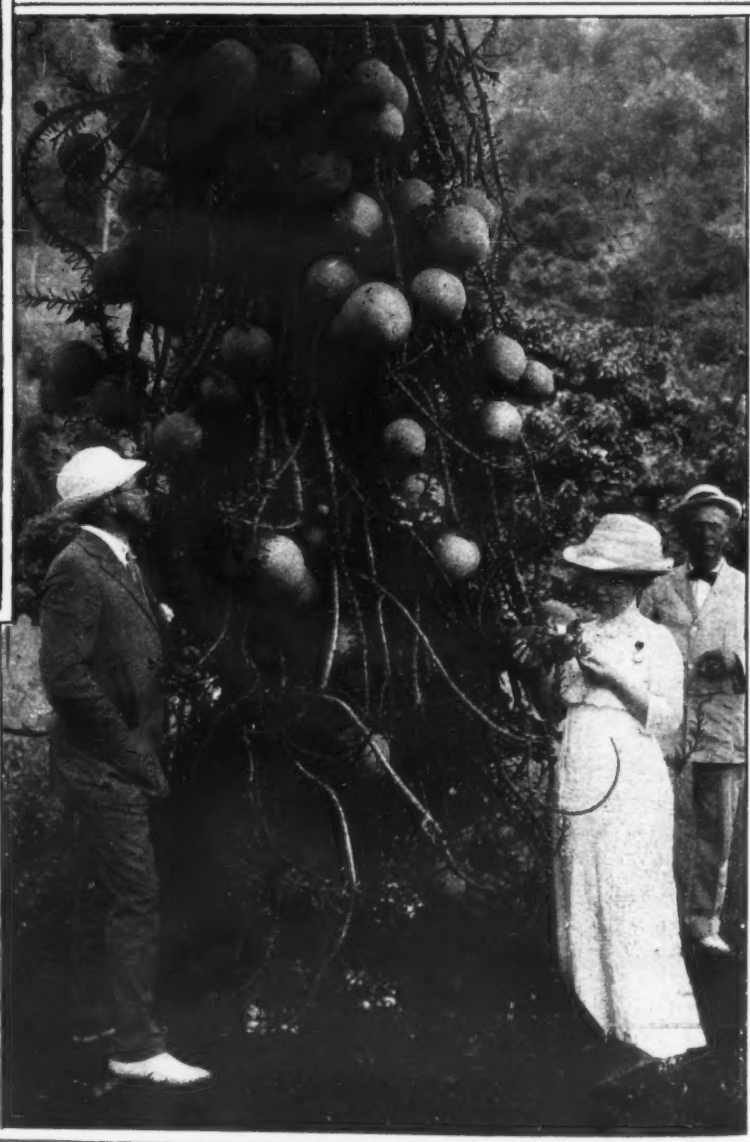

(© Colonial Press Service.)

OUTDOOR CIGAR LIGHTER

A novel feature of life in Naples is a slowly burning rope extended between two posts in the open street. Any passer by can get a light for his cigar or cigarette without going in a cigar store, with the implied obligation of buying.

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

CANNON BALL TREE

The reason for the name is obvious, as in size and shape the fruit of this San Domingo tree justifies the appellation. It is a tropical tree, and is found not only in Central but in South America. It bears round fruit contained in large cups, which are used as drinking cups by the natives. The fruit is refreshing and nutritious, but its use is chiefly domestic and only small quantities are offered for export.

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

Human—Gathered by the Camera From Both Hemispheres

LEAF-DRAPED MANIKINS

An unusual method of draping manikins is this observed in Macao-China. The figures are placed on urns, surrounded by a wire frame, and on this frame are placed leaves and small branches that form the garment for the figure. The manikins are used for purposes of ornament, just as in this country figures of stags and lions adorn the grounds of an estate. Usually they represent famous figures in national history—heroes, Queens and Emperors.

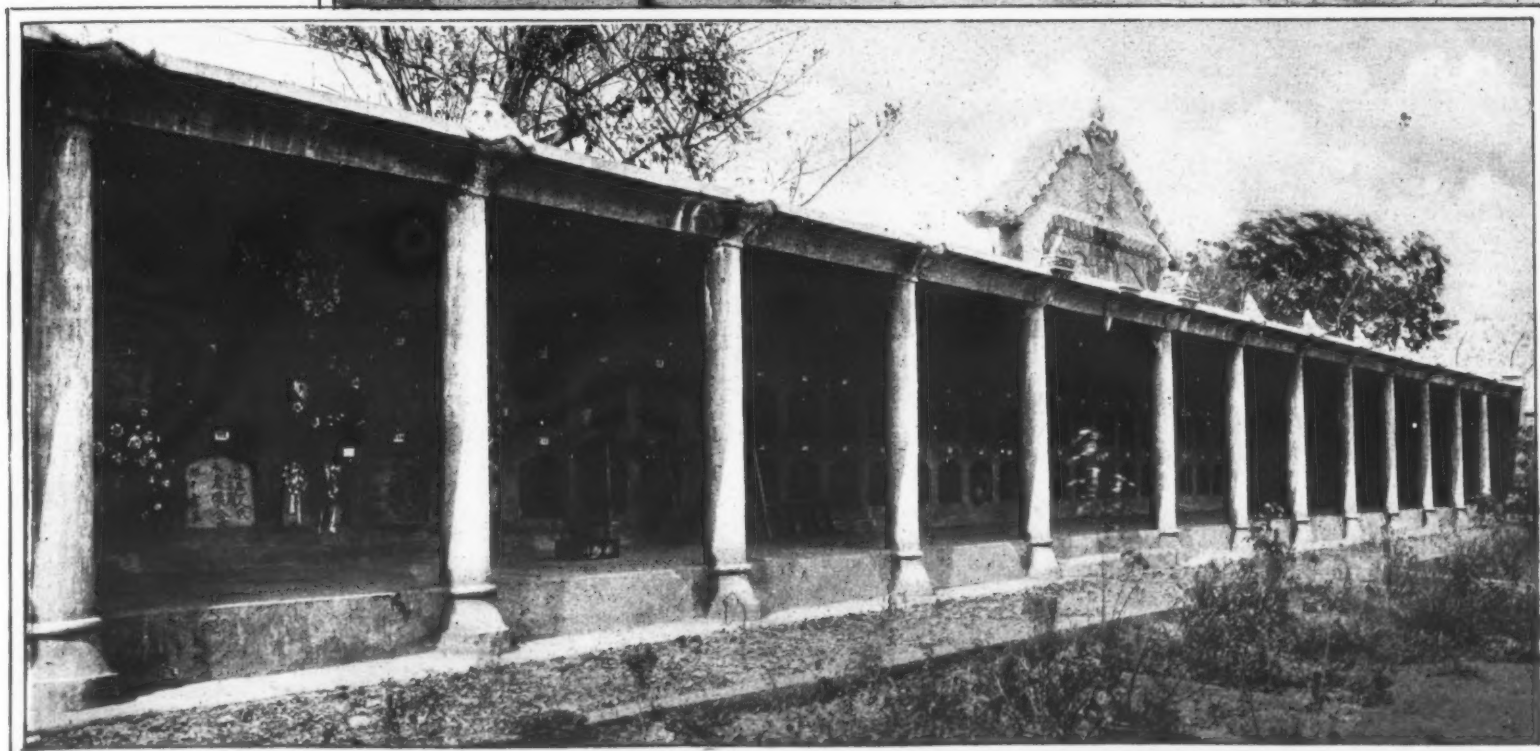

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

BULLOCK-SKIN FERRY

Method of crossing streams in the region of Northern India. The skins of bullocks are inflated with air and easily carry the navigator across, although they are as skittish and difficult for the tyro as a canoe.

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

CHINESE CEMETERY

This is located in Panama and is intended only as a temporary resting place for the dead. Each vault or shelf holds a body. When large numbers have accumulated, they are shipped in one consignment to China for permanent burial.

(© Publishers Photo Service.)

Missing American Balloonists, After Thrilling Experiences

One of the first pictures received from Canada, showing Lieutenants Kloor and Hinton with a dog team "mushing" toward Mattice. The photograph was taken when they were still ten miles from Mattice.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

LIEUTENANT FARRELL
one of the three missing balloonists, wearing a broad smile as he reached Mattice at the end of his hazardous trip.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

GEORGE McLEOD

Indian trapper, who brought the first word of missing aviators to the outside world. He had traveled about three hundred miles over the snow from Moose Factory station to Mattice.

(© International.)

Part of the little Canadian village of Mattice, which has come into world-wide notice because it was the point where the missing aviators emerged from the Canadian wilderness. Throughout the entire Winter, as here, it is robed in snow. The influx of reporters and photographers from the outside world surpassed in numbers the whole population.

(© International.)

in the Canadian Wilds. Return in Safety

At the head of the leading dog team is Lieutenant Farrell coming into the outskirts of Mattice after the gruelling struggle through the snow.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

LIEUTENANTS KLOOR AND HINTON

At the left is Kloor, the pilot of the balloon party, while Hinton is shown at right.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

Photograph taken ten miles out of Mattice, showing the aviators in the last stage of their long journey.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

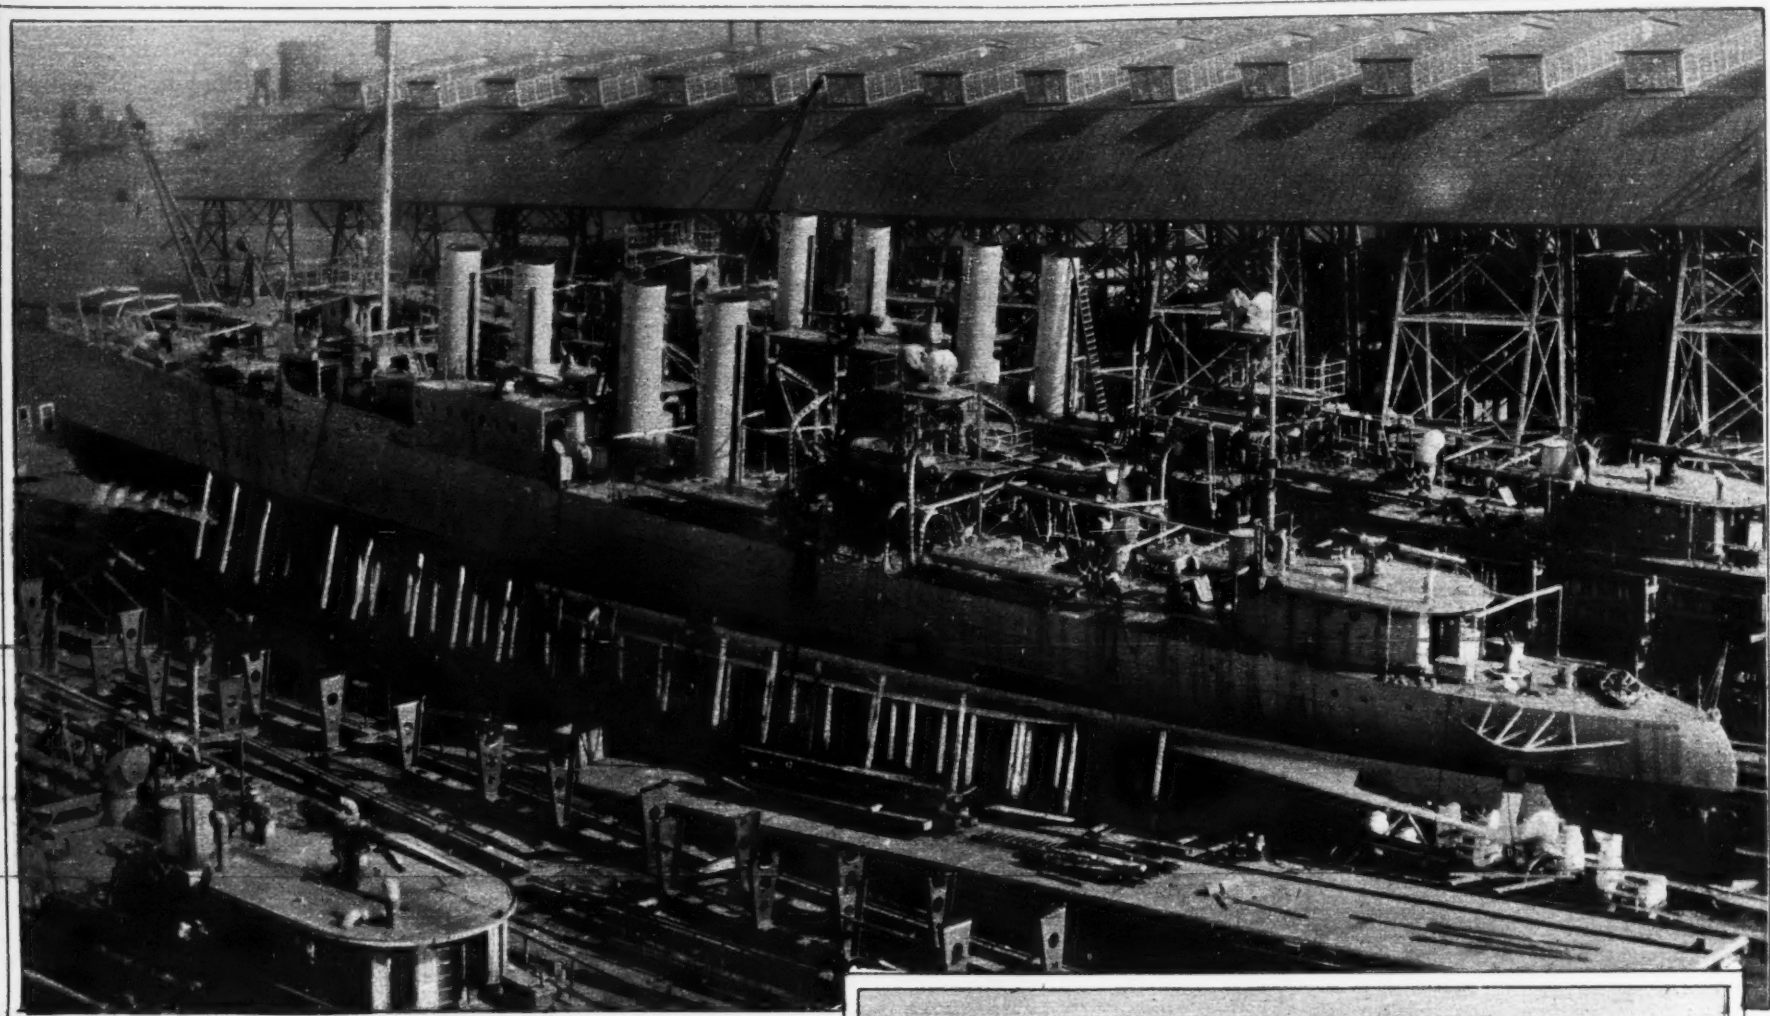

EVER since the news was flashed from Canada on Jan. 2 that the three American balloonists who had left Rockaway Point, L. I., N. Y., on Dec. 13 and for whose safety grave fears had been entertained, were safe and sound at Moose Factory, Canada, a station of the Hudson Bay Company, the world has been agog to learn all the details of their adventures. Mattice, the little Canadian town which was the nearest railroad point and to which the balloonists were reported to be trudging their way over the snow, was invaded by an army of newspaper men and photographers, eager to get at first hand all the details of the trip. The air-men reached Mattice safely on Jan. 11, and the story of their experiences was promptly secured and sent to all parts of the world. Although tired and worn, none of them had sustained any serious injury. The essential part of the story was contained in the following excerpts from a letter of Lieutenant Kloor to his father:

"Friday, after having followed a small river from where we first landed in the balloon, I discovered sled tracks in the ice, and we set off to follow them. If we had not found these sled tracks, we would not be living today."

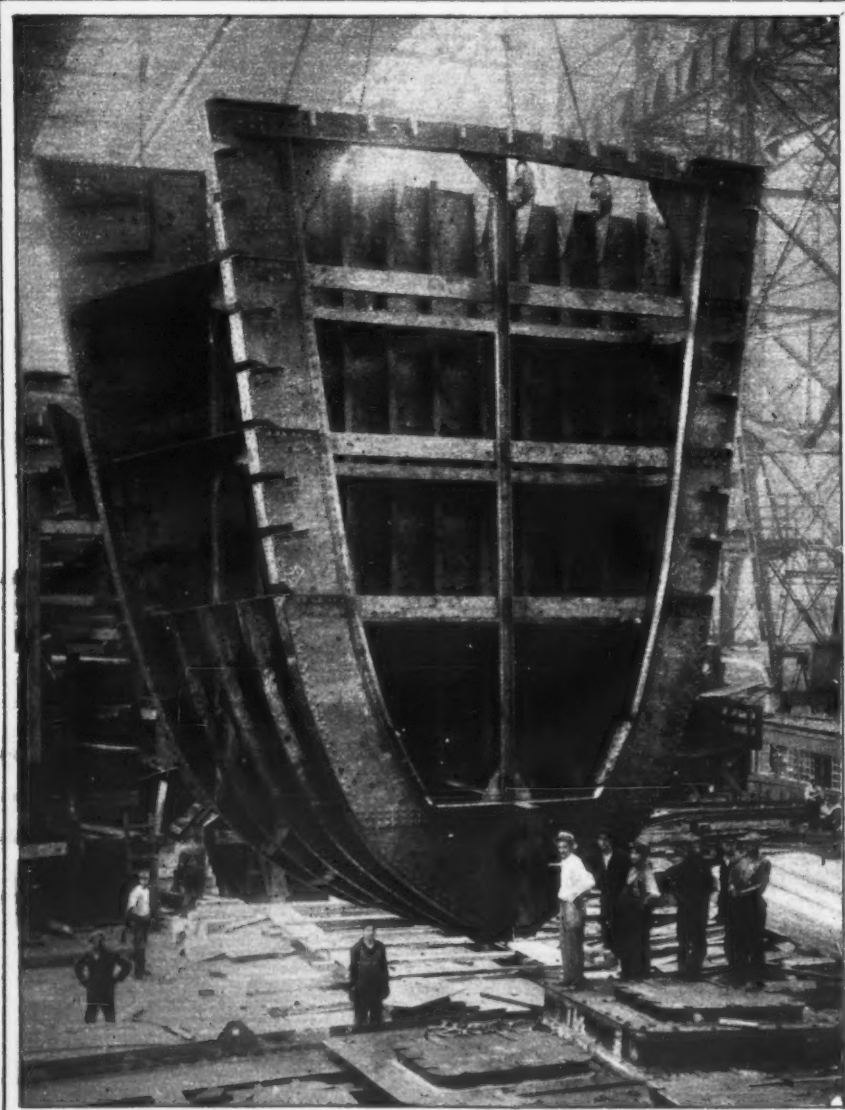

"We followed the tracks for at least five miles. They led into a large lake of ice at least two miles wide. After walking along for about an hour on the lake, in the direction the tracks led, we spied a man about a mile ahead of us. After many wild shouts of distress I managed to stop him and got to him to tell him to help us find a town or some house, food and clothing. The Indian led me for two hours through snow and ice to this place, where, to my joy, I found a settlement of white former traders and Indians."

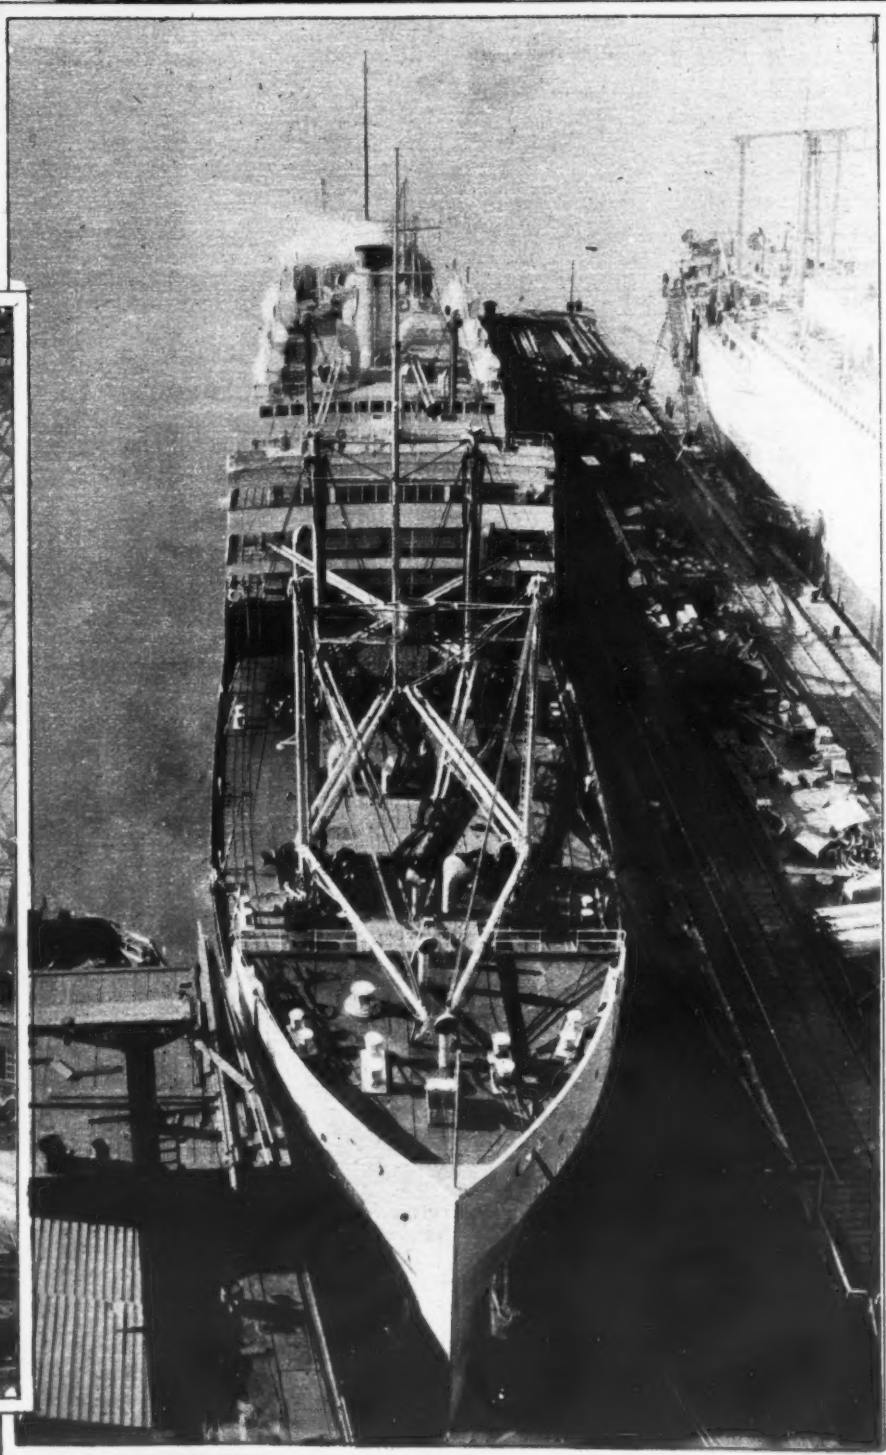

Construction of Naval and Merchant Ships in Record Time

Broadside view of U. S. torpedo boat destroyer Childs as it lay on the ways prior to launching. This is one of thirty of the same type ordered by the United States Navy Department from the New York Shipbuilding plant in Camden. By means of special crane facilities it was made possible to install the machinery and guns while on the ways.

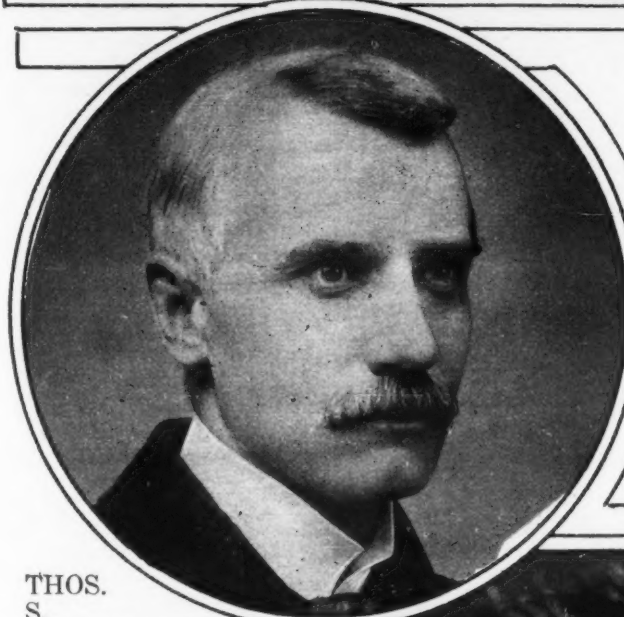

Forty-ton forward web frame, collision bulkhead and chain locker being put into place by cranes. This section of the bow of a 15,000-ton tank steamer had been prepared on the ground in advance, preparatory to being joined to the rest of the vessel. Partly as a result of this and other methods of speeding up, the huge ship was completed in six months and ten days, establishing a new record for construction of a shelter deck tank steamer of the same size.

The Creole State lying at Pier 1 after her return from her trial trip. She is one of the newly constructed vessels that is to fly the American flag and ply as a regular passenger and cargo steamer between America and Europe. The vessels that compose the fleet are named after the various States of the Union, such as the Panhandle State, the Granite State, &c., and are the last word in safety, comfort and luxury. The displacement of each is 21,200 tons.

(Courtesy of N. Y. Shipbuilding Corporation.)

Active Figures in Legislative and Diplomatic Circles

SENATE IMMIGRATION INQUIRY
Frederick A. Wallis, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island (third from left), giving testimony before the Senate Immigration Committee in which he declared that Europe was "literally moving to the United States." The bill passed by the House prohibiting immigration for one year is now before the Senate. Left to right are Senators Johnson, Dillingham, Commissioner Wallis, Senator Colt, Miss Frances Kellor and Senator Harrison.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

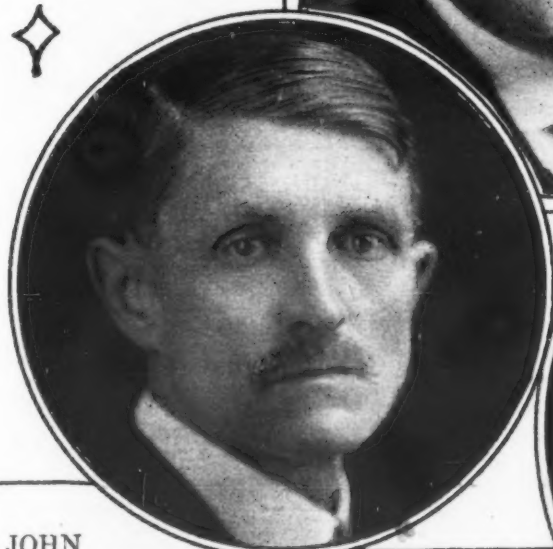

THOS. S. BUTLER
Republican Representative from Pennsylvania and Chairman of House Committee on Naval Affairs.

GUY F. ALLEN
recently named by President Wilson to succeed John Burke as Treasurer of the United States.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

ANTONIO R. BARCELO
President of Porto Rico, now in Washington.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

THOMAS STERLING
Republican Senator from South Dakota, active in immigration discussions.

JOHN F. KRAMER
Federal Prohibition Commissioner, who is having trouble in enforcing Volstead law.

COUNT VON NIEZYCHOWSKI of Poland, who is now in Washington in interests of Polish State. (© Harris & Ewing.)

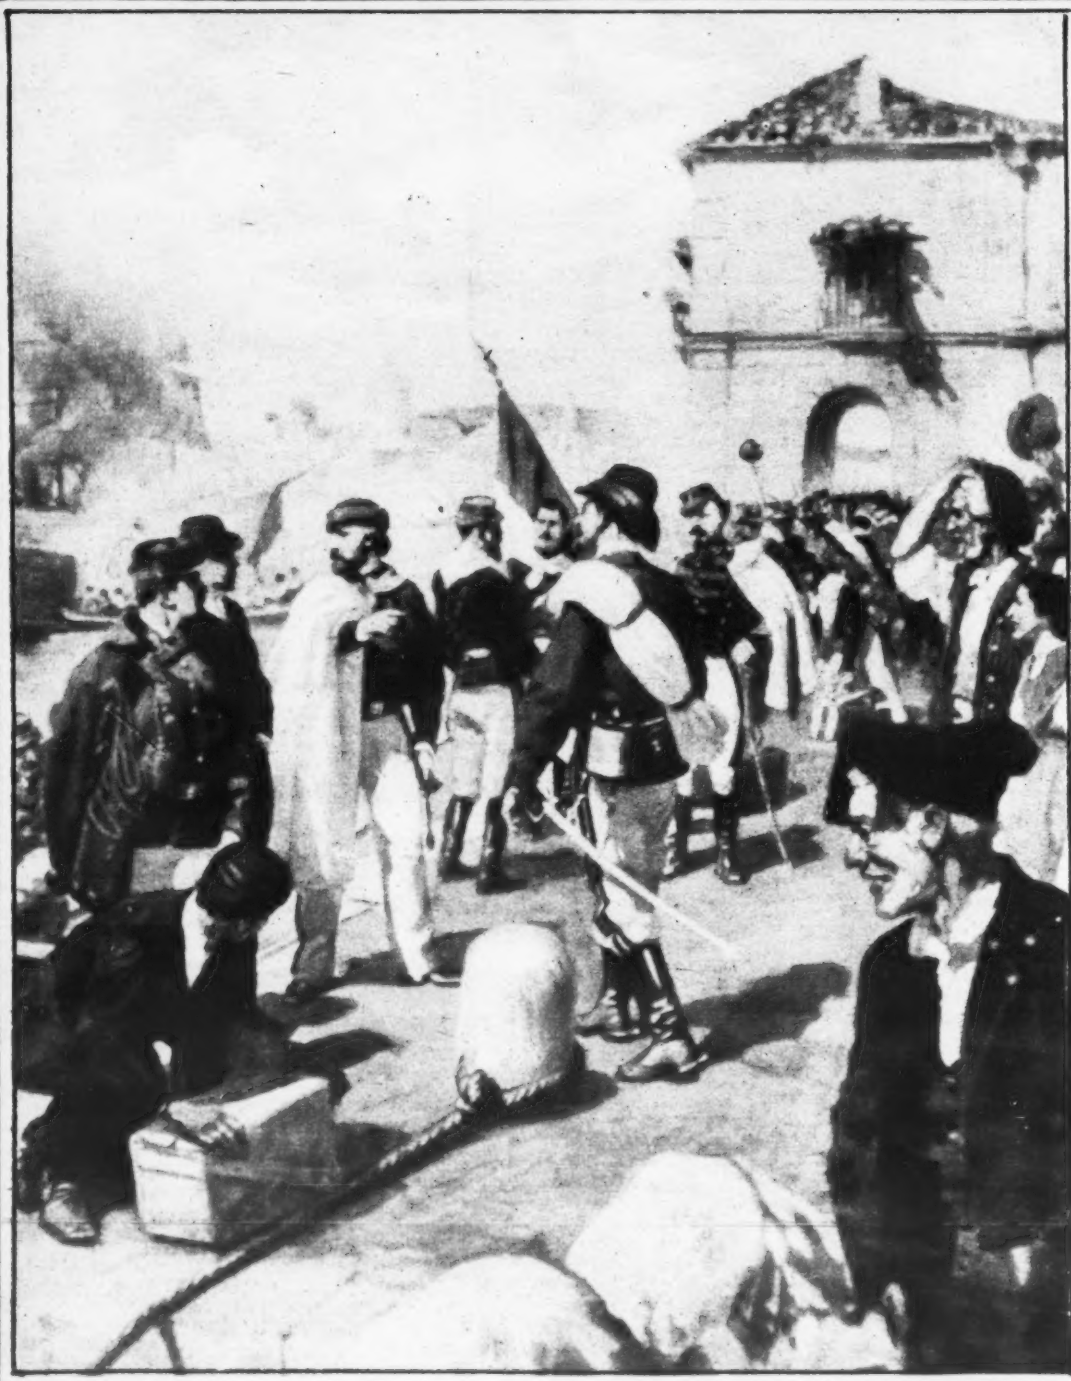

DR. R. L. SHANTZ
agricultural explorer of U. S. Department of Agriculture, who has just returned from 1,000-mile trip in Africa.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

Campaigns of Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel That Welded

King Victor Emmanuel II. and Garibaldi entering Naples in triumph Nov. 7, 1860. Garibaldi had entered the city two months earlier, but when Victor Emmanuel appeared the former resigned his dictatorship.

Garibaldi landing at Marsala with his famous "thousand" May 11, 1860, on his journey from Genoa. He routed at Calatafimi a much larger force sent against him, and within twenty-six days from landing made himself master of Palermo. In two months his army increased to 18,000 men.

Map of Italy in 1815 when it consisted of a loose aggregation of States, some independent, but most of them under the control of Austria. At that time Italy, to quote Metternich, was "only a geographical expression."

THE growth of Italy from a mere congeries of warring States to the united kingdom which is now one of the great powers of Europe has been accomplished in little more than a century, and is full of interest and romance. After the downfall of the régime of the first Napoleon there were seven principal States in Italy, nominally independent and two regions under foreign rule. They were (1) the Kingdom of Sardinia, to which the House of Savoy returned; (2) the Duchy of Parma and of Piacenza; (3) the Duchy of Modena; (4) the Grand Duchy of Tuscany; (5) the Duchy of Lucca; (6) the Pontifical State; (7) the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies; (8) Corsica, which remained French, and (9) the Kingdom of Lombardy-Venetia, which passed to the House of Austria. The whole peninsula was dominated by the baleful power of Austria. The oppression of the latter caused numerous conspiracies and insurrections that were bloodily repressed. But the spirit of liberty persisted. Mazzini aroused all Italy with his burning eloquence, Cavour's statesmanship brought a certain unity of action, the military qualities of Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel II. prevailed over the Austrians, and Italian unity—still lacking Venice and Rome—became a fact in 1861. Within the next ten years Venice and Rome also were incorporated in the Italian State.

the Scattered States of Italy Into One Great Kingdom

Meeting of Victor Emmanuel II. and Garibaldi near Caianello Oct. 6, 1860. Both were pursuing the same end by different means and with separate armies, and to both was due the ultimate unification of Italy. On Nov. 9 Garibaldi relinquished his dictatorship and retired to Caprera, from which place he twice emerged later in behalf of his country.

Garibaldi and his staff at Maggiore in 1860. His campaign that year was dazzling in its brilliancy. In two months from the time of his landing at Marsala, Sicily, with a thousand men he had made himself master of the island, and by September he had captured Naples.

COUNT CAVOUR
astute and brilliant statesman (1810-1861) to whose efforts was largely due the unification of Italy.

Stirring episode of the battle of San Martino on the 24th day of June, 1859. In this campaign the French aided the nationalist movement in Italy, although Napoleon III's motives were purely selfish.

Growth of the Kingdom of Italy From Its Unification

GEN. ARMANDO DIAZ
leader of the Italian armies when they crushed Austria, 1918.

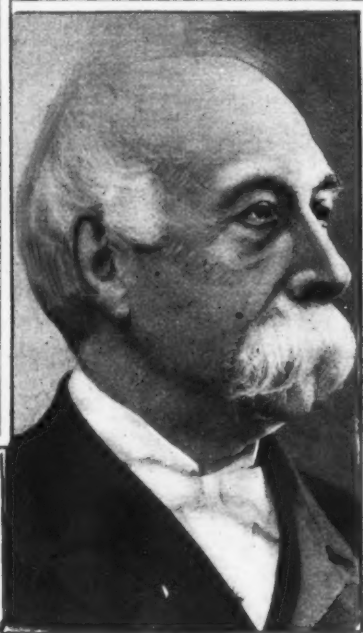

GENERAL CADORNA
Commander in Chief of the Italian armies in the first two years of the war.

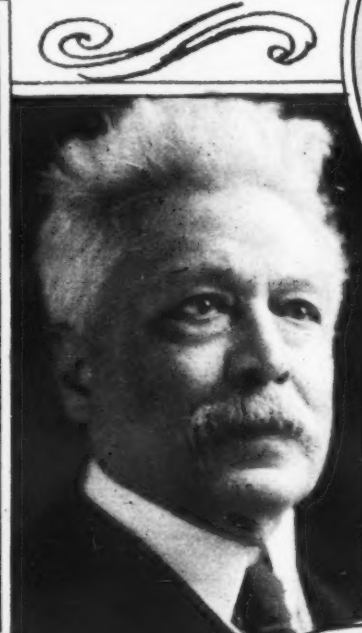

Italian artillerymen fighting about their gun and making a desperate stand against the oncoming Austro-German hordes on the height beyond the Isonzo.

GEN. BADAGLIO
second in command to Gen. Diaz in the 1918 campaign.

FRANCESCO CRISPI
Twice Prime Minister of Italy. Died in 1901.

M. NITTI
Prime Minister of Italy, succeeding Orlando.

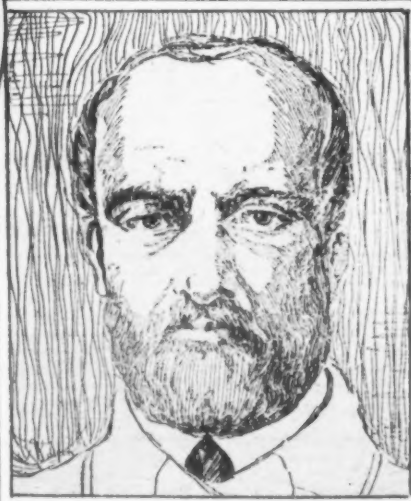

VITTORIO ORLANDO
Prime Minister of Italy in 1919 and head of Peace delegation.

GIOVANNI GIO-LITTI
Italian statesman who is the present Prime Minister of Italy.

ANTONIO SALANDRA
Premier of Italy, who preserved her neutrality in 1914.

GIUSEPPE MAZZINI
Fiery orator and impassioned patriot (1805-1872).

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO
poet-warrior who seized Fiume in September, 1919, and held it up to the end of 1920.

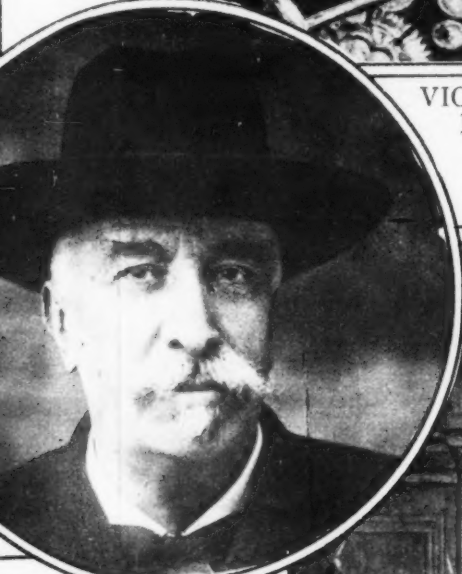

Map of present-day Italy, showing the dates which the territory of separate districts were incorporated in the present kingdom.

Unification Under Victor Emmanuel II. to the Treaty of Rapallo, 1920

GENERAL CADORNA
Commander in Chief of the Italian armies in the first two years of the war.

VICTOR EMMANUEL II.
First King of modern Italy from 1861 to 1878. He was born in 1820.

VICTOR EMMANUEL III.
Present King of Italy. Crowned July 29, 1900.

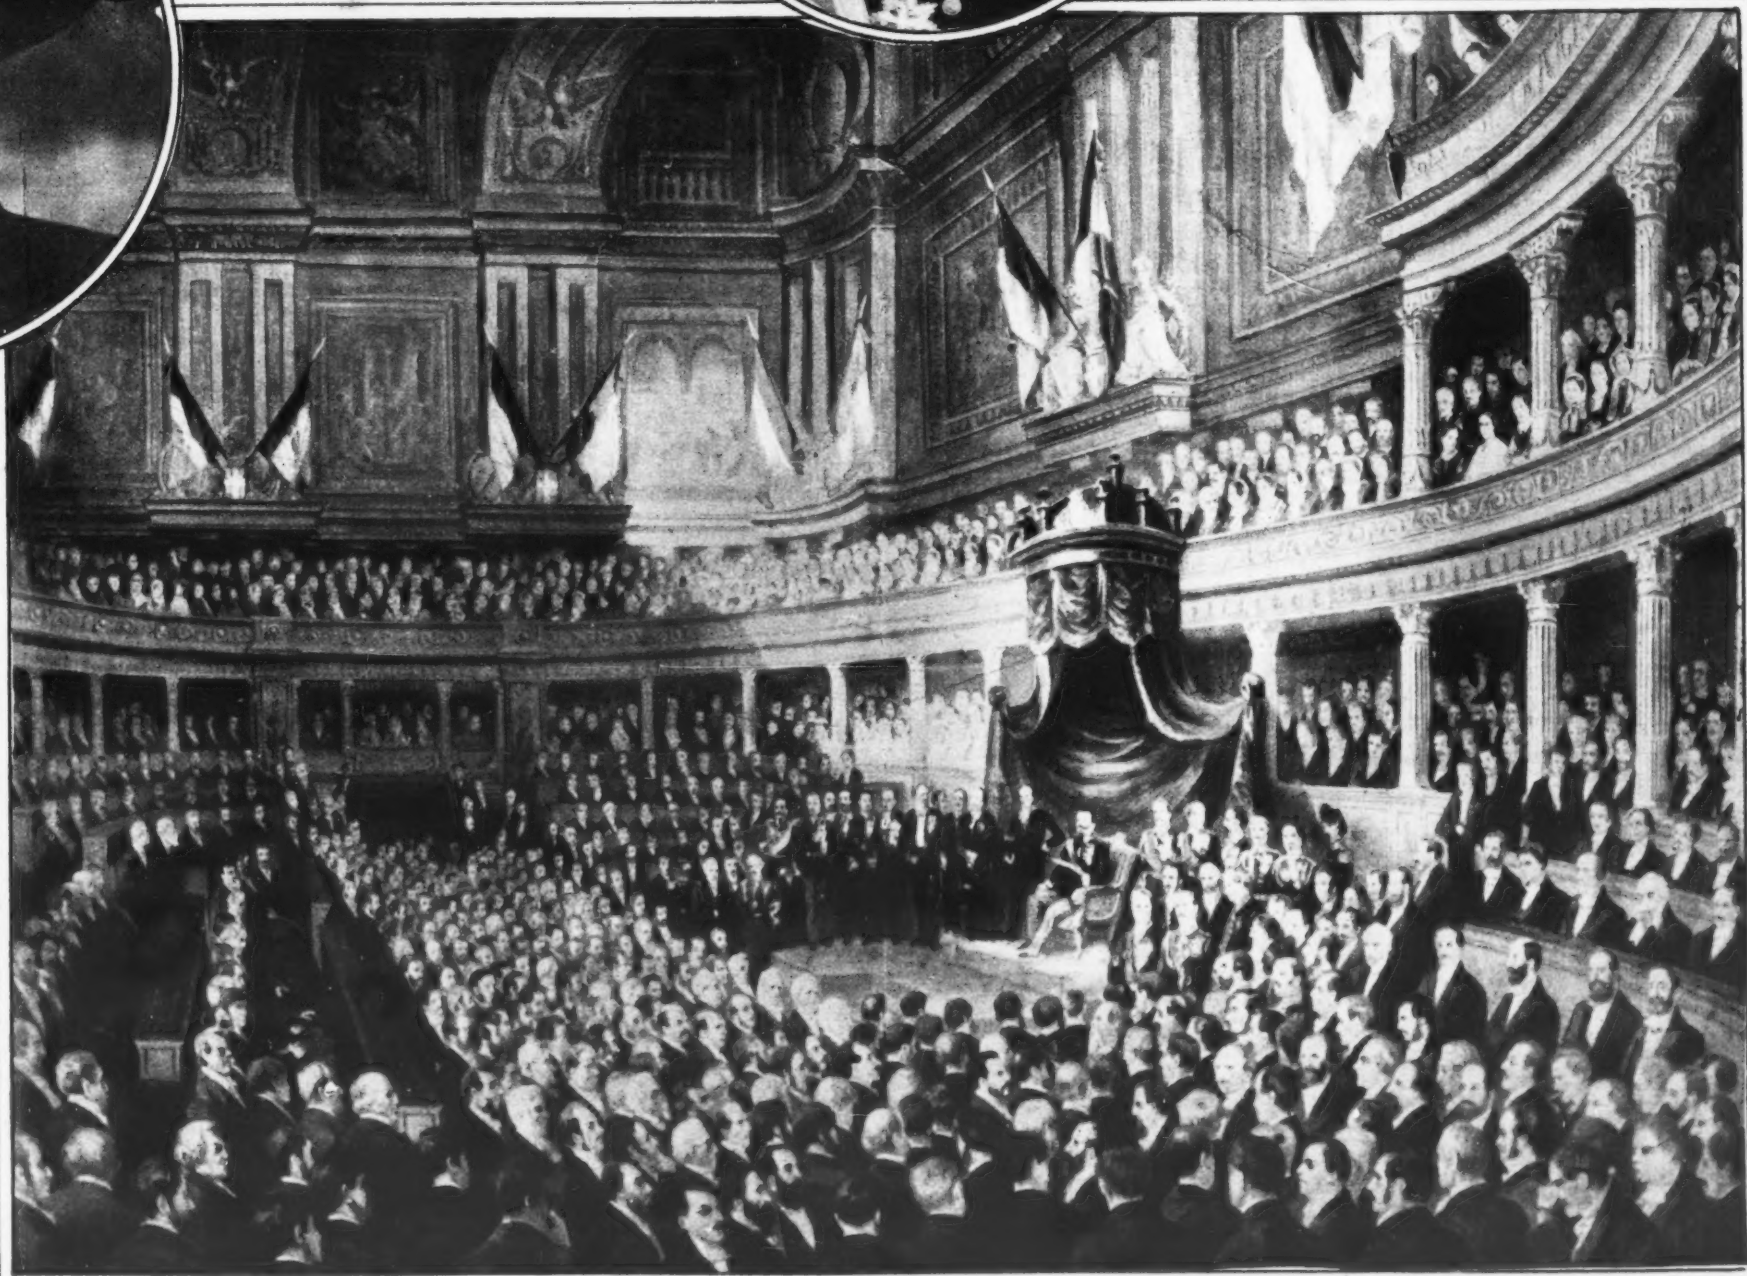

HUMBERT I.
King of Italy from 1878 to his assassination July 29, 1900.

JOSEPH BONAPARTE
King of Naples from 1806 to 1808, when he was made by his famous brother King of Spain.
(From a Drawing by E. N. Dart.)

Showing the dates at which districts were incorporated into the kingdom.

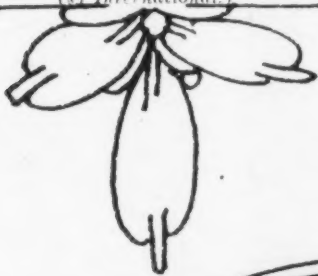

Inaugural session of the first Parliament of the Kingdom of Italy in Turin, Feb. 18, 1861. It was an imposing occasion. King Victor Emmanuel II. is seen reading the speech from the throne. At that time Venetia and Rome were still under separate Governments, but Venetia was added in 1866 and Rome became the capital of the Kingdom in 1870.

Celebrations of Notable Events at Home and Abroad

Impressive military ceremonies in Coblenz, Germany, Dec. 14, when Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, commanding the American forces in Germany, was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. General Degoutte made the award in behalf of France, and then reviewed the entire First Brigade of the American Army.

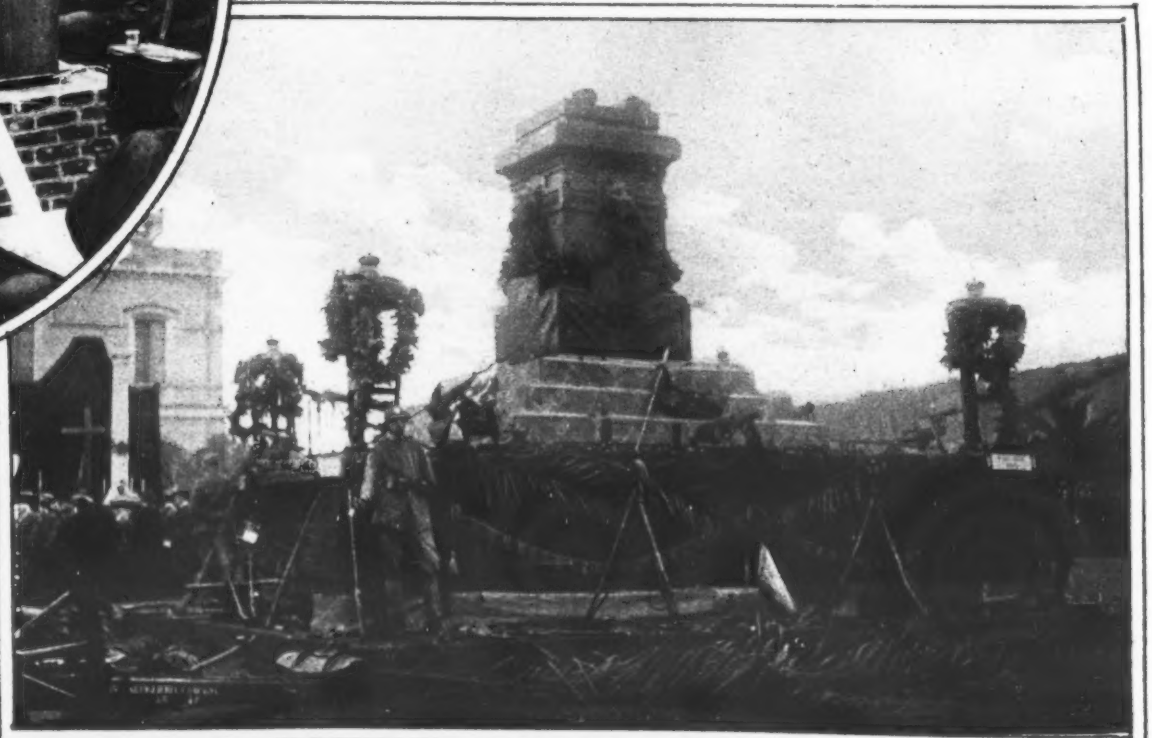

Theodore Roosevelt's memory honored on the second anniversary of his death, Jan. 6, by ceremonies at 28 East Twentieth Street, New York, his birthplace, where the cornerstone of Roosevelt House, a memorial building, was laid. Mrs. J. H. Hammond is reading a message from President-elect Harding.

The 400th anniversary celebration in Wittenburg, Germany, of the life and work of Martin Luther. In the background is the old Town Hall, full of historic memories. The participants are shown marching through the market place.

(© International.)

Dedication at Rome, Italy, of Italy's new monument to her soldier dead. It was erected in honor of the valiant deeds of her Grenadier Regiments, whose daring in battle won them the title of the "Battalions of Death."

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

Women Playing Prominent Parts in Present Day Activities

MRS. ALMA WHITE head of the Pillar of Fire Church, an evangelistic organization that now has many branches.

(© Keystone View Co.)

Miss Hazel Mac-
kaye of New York (right) conferring with Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest of Washington on a memorial for suffrage pioneers.

(© Harris & Ewing.)

CONNECTICUT WOMEN LEGISLATORS

Five women who took their seats in the Connecticut House of Representatives when that body began its 1921 session. Three are Republicans, one Democrat and one Independent.
Left to right are Mrs. H. A. Jewett, Mrs.
L. S. Frink, Mrs. M. M. Hooker, Mrs. E. S.
Brown, and the Rev. Miss Grace I. Edwards (woman minister).

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

MRS. NATHAN L. MILLER wife of the Governor of New York State and the only woman who ever cast
an electoral vote for President. She was a member of the
New York Republican Board of Electors.

MRS. THIT JENSON
Danish author, who has just arrived in America to represent her country at the Women's Party Convention in Washington Jan. 15.

(© Underwood & Underwood.)

DR. NORAH E.
DOWELL
who has been appointed Assistant Geologist in the United States Geological Survey. She will act as office geologist and research assistant. She was formerly geological instructor in Smith College.

(© Harris & Ewing.)

Latest Developments in the Tangled Irish Problem

Crowds of Irish sympathizers breaking through the police lines in an effort to shake hands with O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who came from Ireland to the United States as a stowaway. (© Paul Thompson.)

Sinn Fein prisoners at Roscommon Jail, Ireland. There have been so many arrests for sedition and violence that the jail facilities of both England and Ireland have been taxed to the utmost. (© Keystone View Co.)

EVENTS in Ireland show no diminution in bitterness between the Sinn Fein element and the military authorities in control of the country. On Jan. 12 a troop train proceeding to Dugloe, County Donegal, was ambushed by a party of Sinn Feiners 100 strong. It was derailed by large boulders placed across the lines and heavy fire was opened on it. The train crew put the train back on the track while the troops fought off the ambushers. The train reached its destination without casualties to the occupants, but all the windows were broken and the cars riddled by bullets.

A scene of wild confusion and panic was created on the same day in Bachelors Walk, a leading Dublin thoroughfare, when bombs and bullets were directed against military lorries loaded with auxiliaries. A stampede occurred among the passers-by and many were injured in the rush to escape. The Cadets opened fire with carbines and one of their assailants was hit and carried away by his comrades. One Cadet was injured by a bomb splinter.

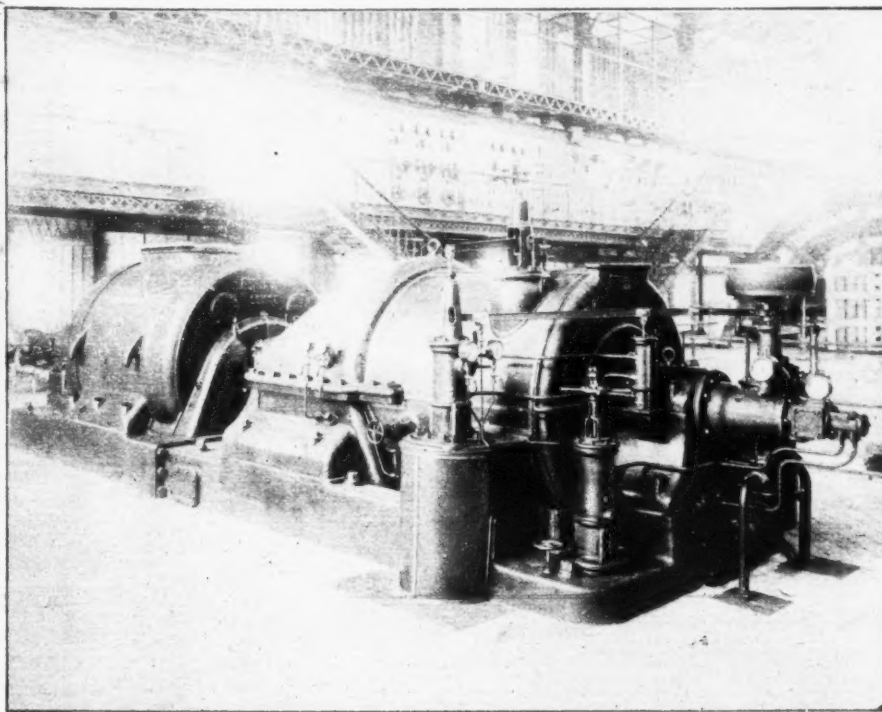

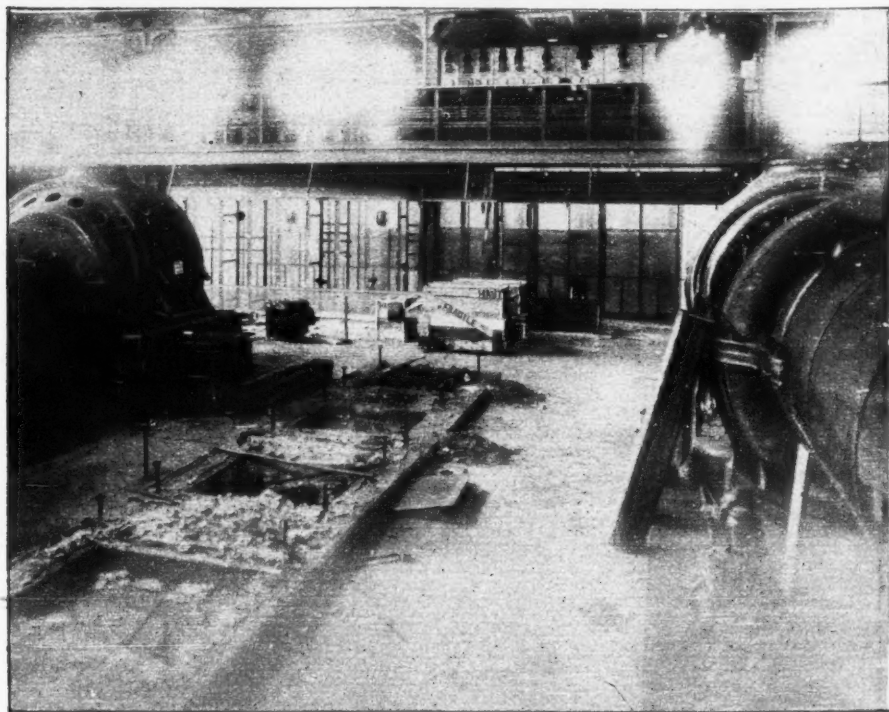

Peter MacSwiney (above), brother of the late Terence MacSwiney, who was Lord Mayor of Cork, and Donal O'Callaghan (right), photographed on their arrival at Newport News, Va., on the American ship West Canon. (© Wide World Photos.)

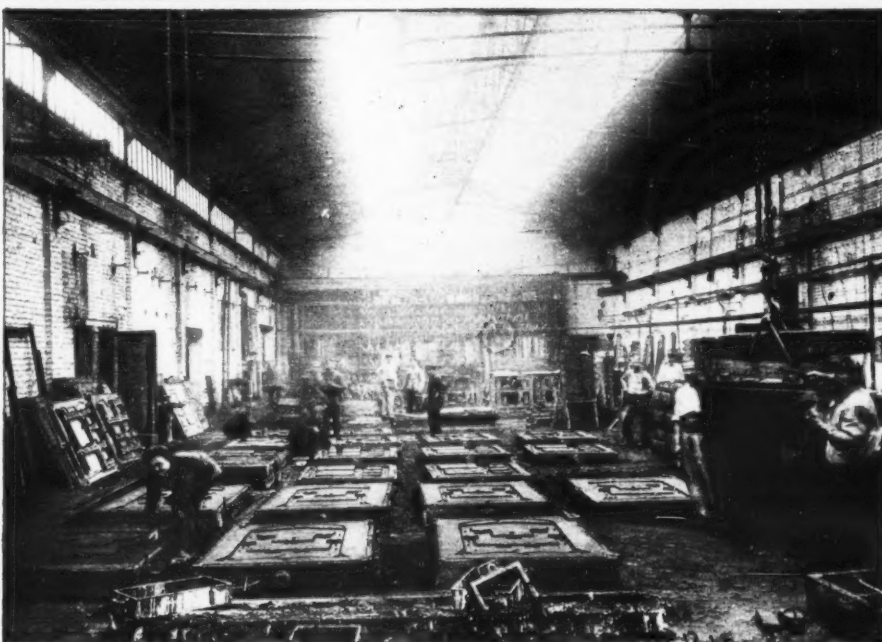

Barbed wire entanglements being erected around the Dublin City Hall in preparation for military occupation. Most of the municipal buildings in Dublin have been commandeered for the troops. (© International.)

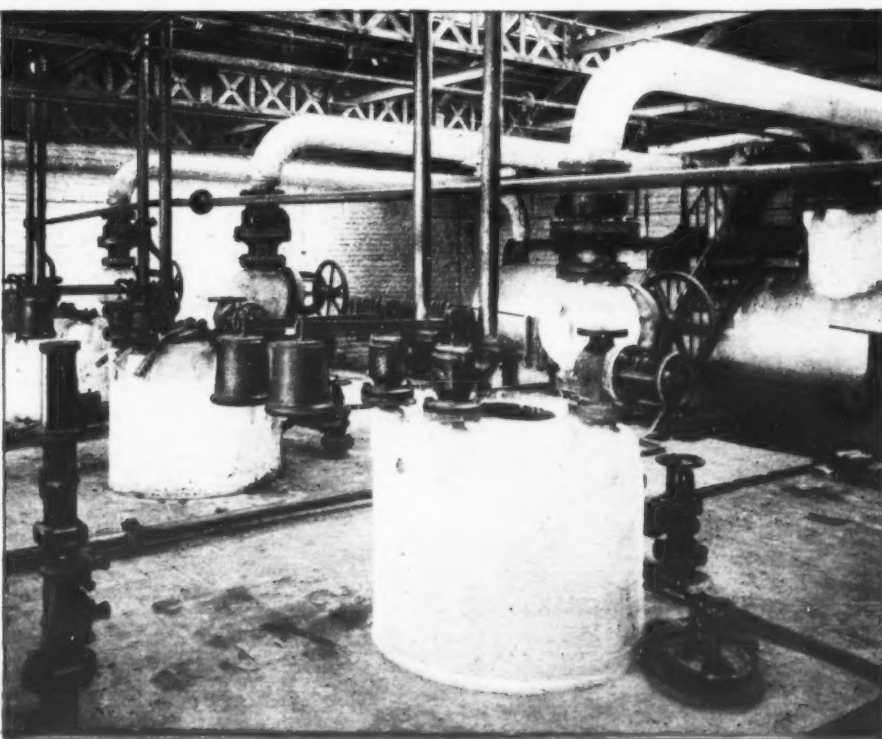

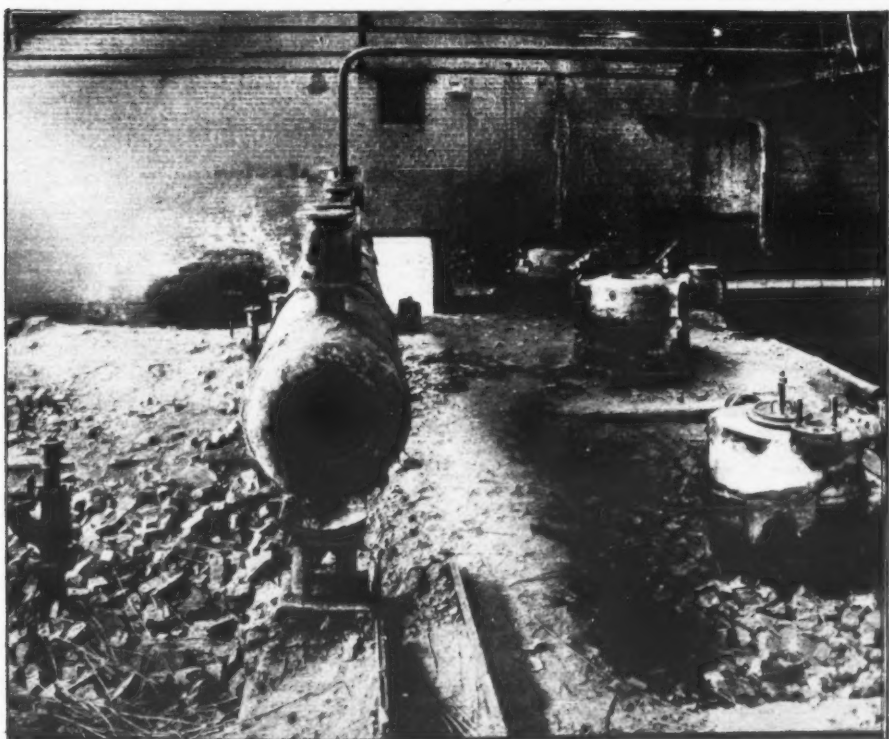

French Reconstruction of Wrecked Industrial Plants

The indomitable spirit and energy of the French people have been demonstrated by the marvelously rapid recovery that has taken place in the districts devastated by the Germans. Above, at left, is shown the dynamo room of the Lille Tramways Company as it was left when the Germans evacuated the city in 1918. At the right it is seen as it is today.

The photograph at the left was taken Feb. 8, 1919. It portrays the foundry of Olivier & Co. at Roubaix, France. The scene of desolation has been replaced (at right) by one of busy industry. When the Germans retreated they destroyed everything that they had not previously sent away into Germany, in order to cripple France as a future commercial competitor.

This scene of desolation at left represents the generating room of the Nicolle spinning mill at Lomme, a manufacturing town three miles from Lille. Less than a year separates the dates on which the photographs were taken, but in that space of time new machinery had been installed and the works were in full operation, all without a dollar of German reparation.

(Photo © Mirsaoff.)

Prominent Players in Stage and Screen Successes

MARGARET McKEE
appearing as a whistler in the spectacle of "Good Times."

(Photo Ira D. Schwarz.)

NELLIE KING
who has played leading parts in musical comedy and is now appearing in motion-picture plays.

(Photo Blank and Stoller.)

MARJORIE HUME
at present playing in London in the American film play, "The Great Day."

(Photo Famous Players Corp.)

BETTY COMPSON

appearing in the principal feminine role in "Prisoners of Love."

(Photo by Evans Studio.)

IRENE WILLIAMS
prima donna soprano who sings the title role in "Erminie," the old-time favorite musical comedy revived after many years.

(Photo by Youngling.)

sses and Striking Scenes From Current Plays

Scene from second act of "Duburau," showing Marie Duplessis (Elsie Mackay) introducing her latest lover, Armand Duval (John Roche), to Duburau (Lionel Atwill), who finds himself supplanted in her affections.

(Photo White Studio.)

"Transplanting Jean." Arthur Byron as the gay Count de Larzac finds himself truly in love with Naima Duval (Margaret Lawrence), who is seen as the fiancée of his natural son Jean (Richard Barbee).

(Photo White Studio.)

"Samson and Delilah." Peter Krumbach (Ben-Ami) is directing his wife, Dagmar (Pauline Lord), who has the leading role in the play he has written. His growing jealousy has almost reached a climax.

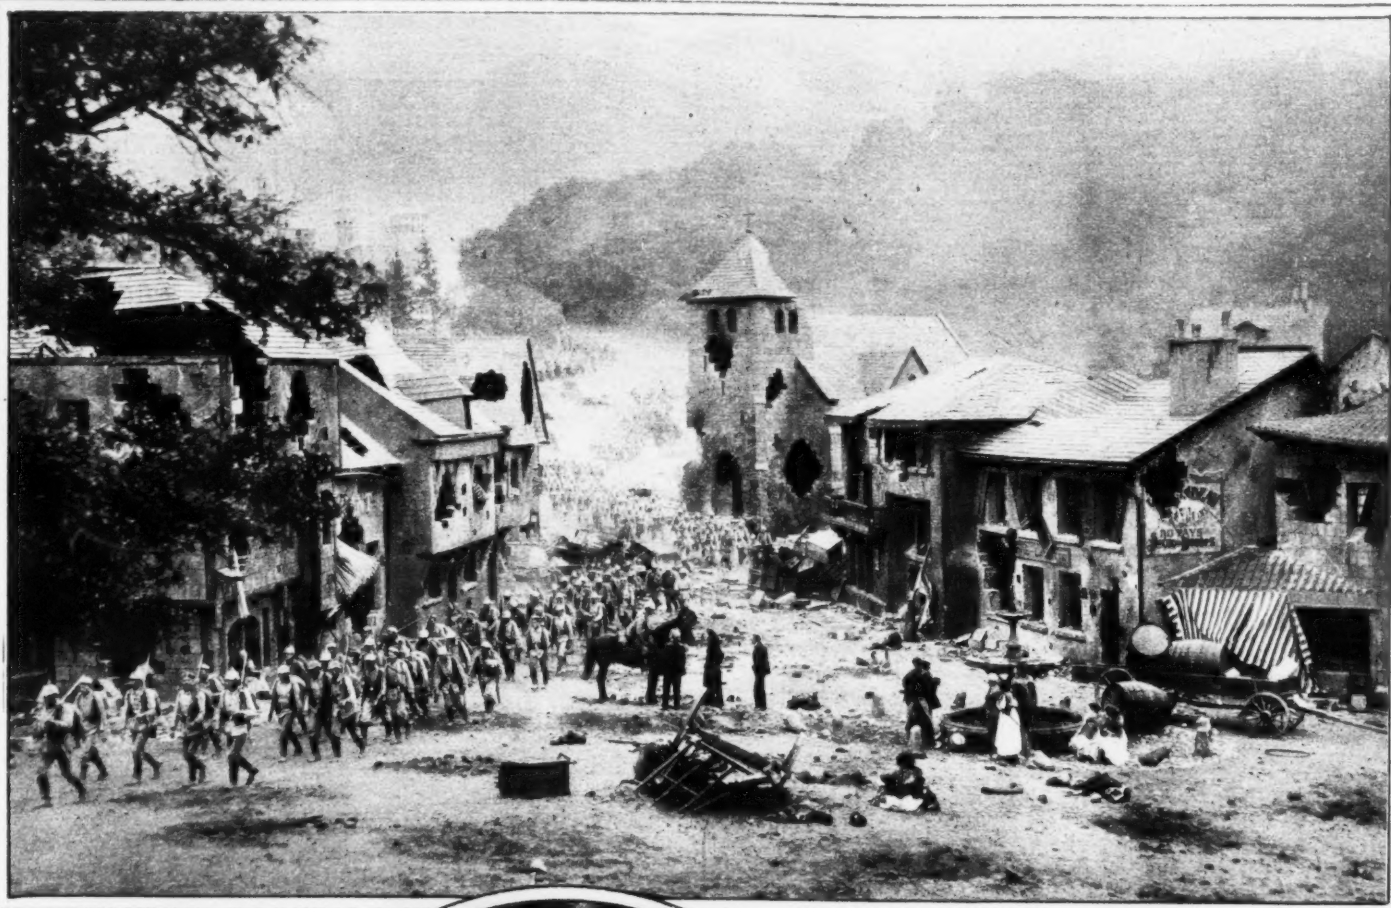

(Photo Ira D. Schwarz.)

Episode in "Wake Up, Jonathan," where Marion Blake (Mrs. Fiske) is patiently and with humorous reservations listening to her husband (Charles Dalton) explain that she is unfitted to govern their children.

(Photo Ira D. Schwarz.)

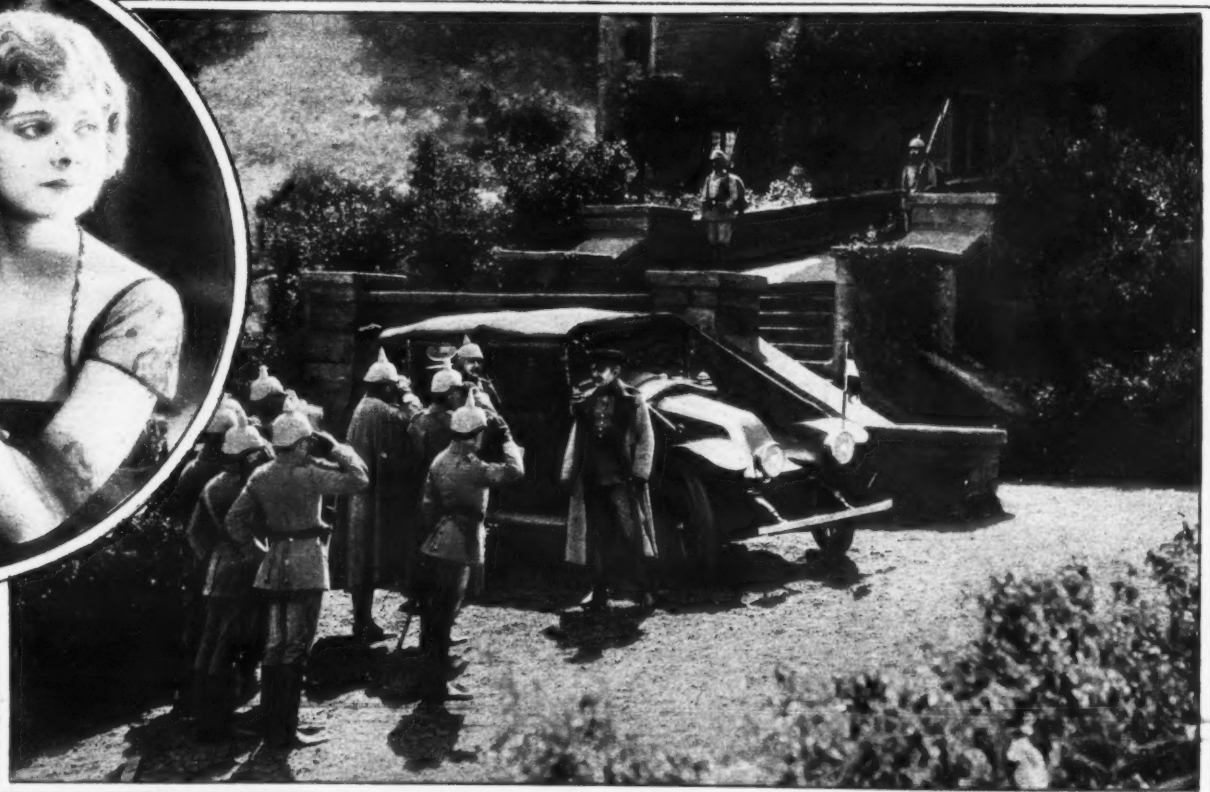

Striking Scenes From the New Million-Dollar Film

German troops passing through the village of Villebranché on the Marne after the town has been virtually destroyed by cannon fire. The German commander on horseback is giving orders to the Cure and Mayor and one of the leading men of the village.

Julio, the hero of the story, bidding farewell to his sweetheart, Marguerite Laurier.

Arrival at the chateau of Julio's father of the German commander, whose character is a combination of the dilettante and the brute. He pauses during the playing of a dreamy nocturne to order callously the shooting of a widow's son.

Derrick Ghent as Rene Lacour in a tender interview with Chichi (Virginia Warwick).

Julio and the Spanish girl Dolores dancing the Argentine tango in a Buenos Aires cafe.

Film Version of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" famous book of the Four Horsemen," by Blasco Imperial. Its sale has already passed

It was inevitable it would be done by the son, from whom have been obvolved in the
has been more village capable was erected in San Bernardino
California, and course of the pro-100 people were of the photo-film—enough the Woolworth
—was exposed,
of this probably the eye of the picture. More iron, steel, lumber were used diverse settings of were required tion, which will presentation.

Julio bidding farewell to his mother before leaving to take part in his first campaign. Both mother and son, though trying to be brave, have a premonition of the fate that awaits him.

Madriaga, "the Centaur," one of the strongest characters of modern fiction. He reigned like a King over the people of his vast Argentine rancho.

Reading of the will of Madriaga. The property was divided between the French and German sons-in-law, and the inequality of the latter's share was made good by the generosity of Desnoyers.

Tchernoff, the Russian, in a moment of inspiration, discerning in the skies "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Terrific explosion accompanying the bombardment of the village of Villebranch on the Marne. The incident occurs during the first German invasion when the Kaiser's troops were sweeping toward Paris.

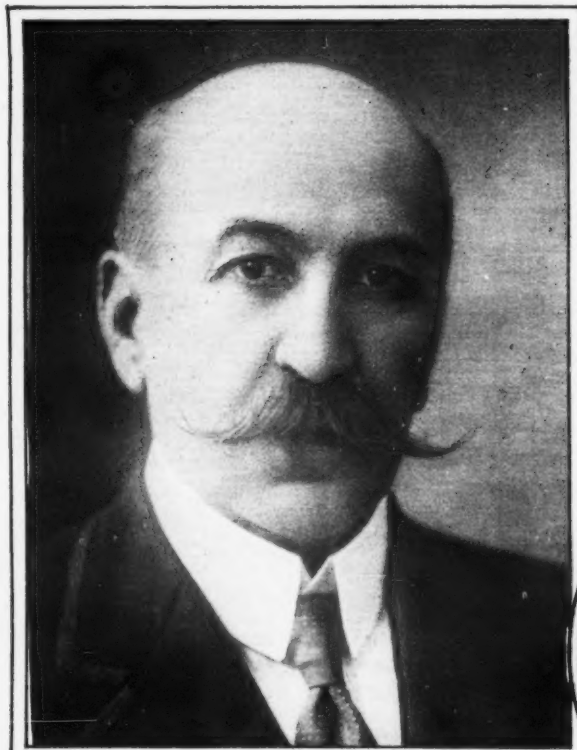

Julio in his Paris studio, where he leads the life of the rich young man of his day before the outbreak of the war called him to the colors.

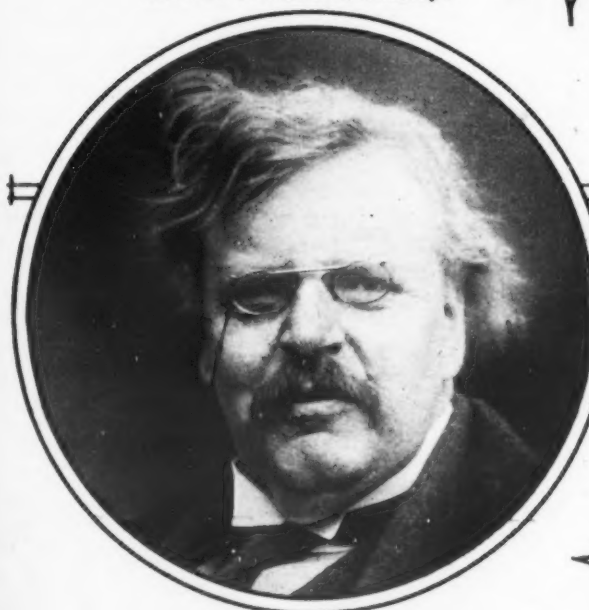

Personalities Prominent in Recent News

ADMIRAL'S ADOPTED FAMILY
Russian children adopted by Rear Admiral Newton R. McCully having their first breakfast in Washington.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

GEORGES LEYGUES
former Premier of the French Republic, whose Cabinet was overthrown Jan. 12 by a vote of 463 to 125 in Chamber of Deputies. He was thought to be too lenient toward Germany.

GILBERT K. CHESTERTON
famous English writer, master of epigram and weaver of paradox, who has just arrived in America on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria to make a lecture tour of the country. He has announced that he would not write a book on America.
(© Keystone View Co.)

INAUGURATION OF GOVERNOR DAVIS
Ohio Governor inaugurated at Columbus, Ohio. The State House was surrounded by an immense throng listening to the inaugural address.
(© U. & U.)

HENRY J. ALLEN
Governor of Kansas, who recently attacked "Townleyism," which threatened to invade his State.
(© Harris & Ewing.)

ETHEL BARRYMORE
who has been compelled to abandon her theatrical tour and go to a hospital because of an attack of rheumatism.
(© Strauss-Peyton.)

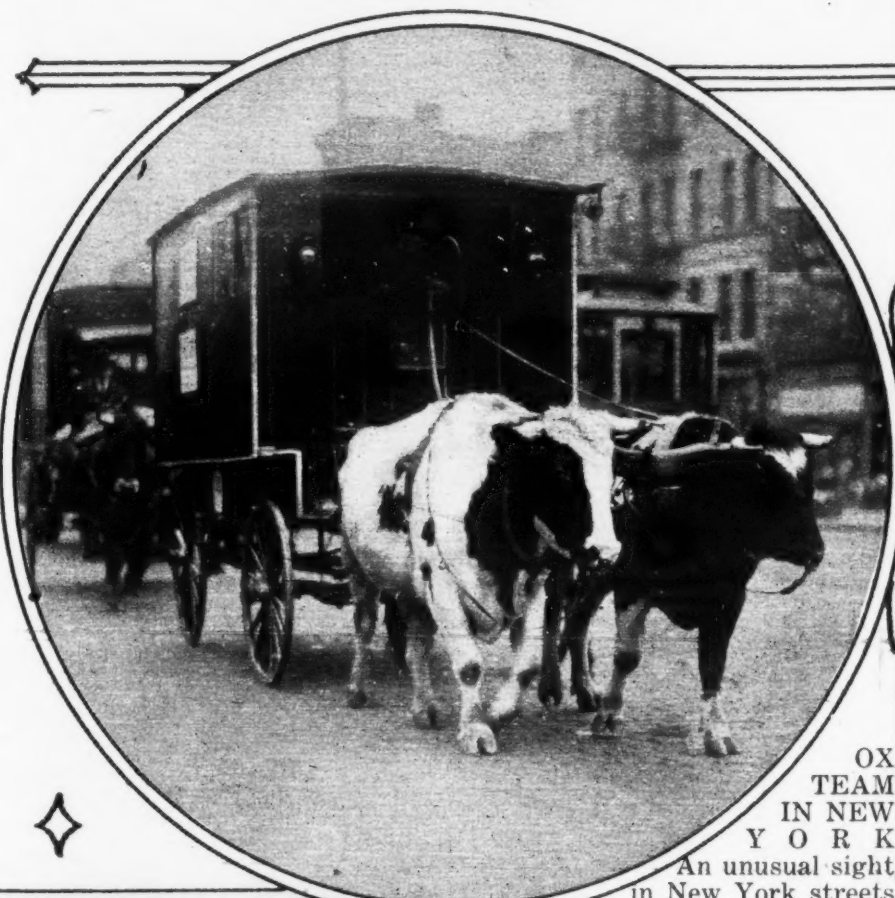

PAUL DESCHANDEL
former President of France, who was compelled to resign his office because of illness. He has now recovered and has been chosen a member of the Senate.

ARCHBISHOP HAYES
New York Catholic primate who recently sailed on the Pesaro for Rome. There are rumors in ecclesiastical circles that he may be made a Cardinal.
(© Paul Thompson.)

Flashlights

OX TEAM IN NEW YORK

An unusual sight in New York streets was this ox team drawing a house on wheels. J. L. Berrang, a Connecticut farmer, with his wife plan thus to cross the continent. (© International.)

SUIT WITH 16,000 BUTTONS
Prize winner at the costermongers' show in London. His name is Crop, and he is known as "King of the Pearlies" (pearl buttons).

LEAD PENCIL NEWSPAPER

Fac simile of only lead pencil newspaper in the world. It was formerly published in connection with the work of the Expeditionary Forces in France. It is now issued in Dayton, Ohio.

(From Fitzgerald.)

ELEPHANT TRAINING

Trainer in the New York Hippodrome teaching an elephant to lift up front foot in practicing a dance step. The trainer is Mr. Powers, one of the foremost in that line.

(© Wide World Photos.)

NOVEL SAFETY POISON BOTTLES

New types of bottles designed for poisons to prevent mistake from handling in the dark. One cannot stand upright, two have lock and key arrangements.

(© International.)

WILD CAMELS

on sale in the camel market, Cairo, Egypt. Their front legs are tied up to prevent escape and also to guard against attack should they become frantic. After they become used to their surroundings their legs are released.

(© Wide World Photos.)

The Flyer is a continuation of an over-500 publication. The only, pal of the day, in the world, and the only one in the world.

Bob Fitzgerald Editor

The Flyer

The Only Lead Pencil Newspaper in the World.

Vol. 17, No. 1029: 549 Burt Ave. Dayton, Ohio. South Port. January 1st, 1921.

ALL THE HAPPENINGS OF THE TIMES IN PICTURE

HARRY KAREWICH, Dayton, who just arrived at his home, is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card. He is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card. He is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card.

JUNE BARBER, Dayton, who just arrived at her home, is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card.

STEPHEN BARKER, Dayton, who just arrived at his home, is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card. He is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card. He is the only one in the city who has not yet received his New Year's card.

MISS CONSTANCE, Dayton, who just arrived at her home, is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card.

MISS CONSTANCE, Dayton, who just arrived at her home, is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card. She is the only one in the city who has not yet received her New Year's card.

FIRE CAUSES $5000 LOSS

OVERHEATED FURNACE CAUSE OF BIG FIRE

A fire which broke out this morning in the building for the sale of rubber, on Perry Street, St. Paul, caused a loss of $5,000. The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. It is believed that the furnace was overheated because it was not properly maintained.

Eight fire companies were called out to fight the fire. The fire was extinguished in about ten minutes. The building was a two-story building. It was used for the sale of rubber. It was a very large building. It was a very large building. It was a very large building.

The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. It is believed that the furnace was overheated because it was not properly maintained. The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. It is believed that the furnace was overheated because it was not properly maintained.

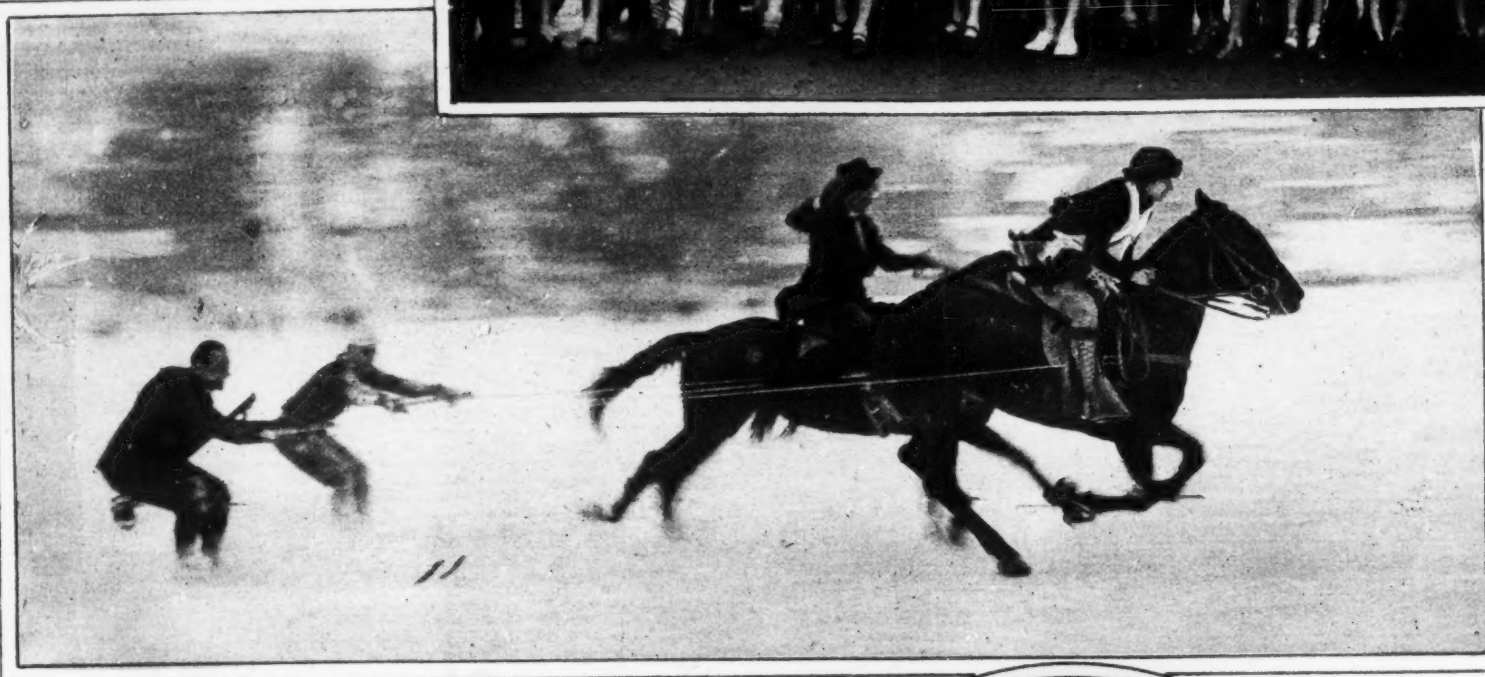

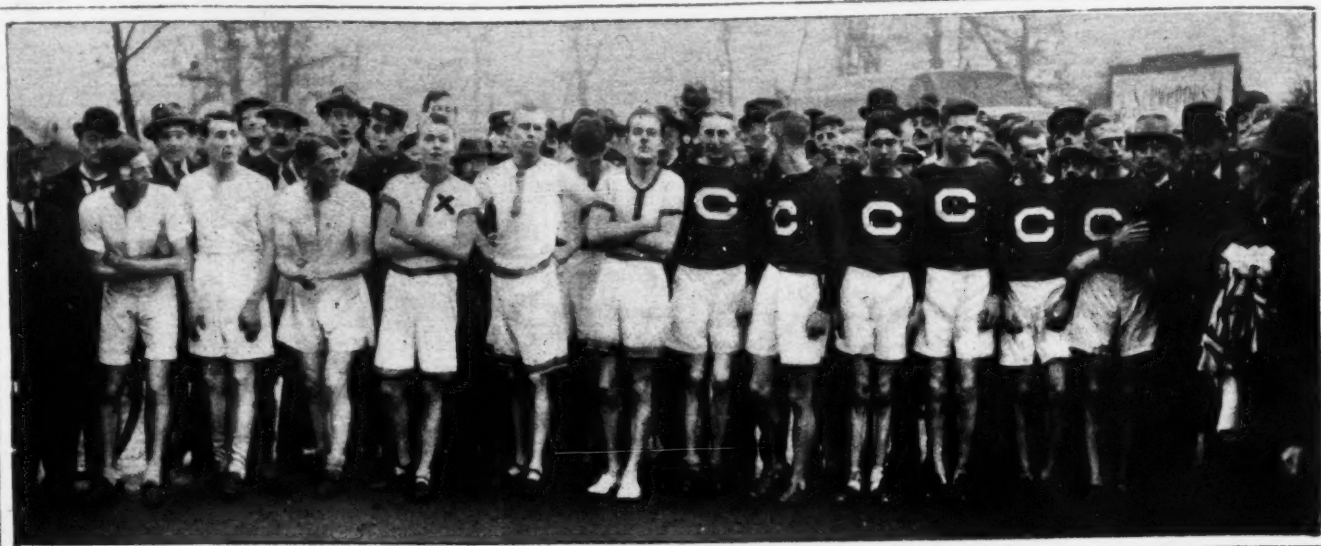

The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. It is believed that the furnace was overheated because it was not properly maintained. The fire was caused by an overheated furnace. It is believed that the furnace was overheated because it was not properly maintained.

Notable Figures and Events in the Field of Sports

INTERNATIONAL CROSS-COUNTRY RACE

Teams from Cornell University, Ithaca, New York, and from Oxford and Cambridge Universities, England, lined up for a cross-country race on Wimbledon Common, London. The American players have the letter C on their suits. The distance was about 7½ miles across country, the start being made from Roehampton. The race was won by N. A. McGinnis of the English team (indicated by cross).

(By Wire World Photos.)

WINTER SPORT

Somewhat analogous to surf boating is this Winter sport at Lake Placid, N. Y., which is not without an element of real risk to make it exciting. Men on snowshoes are drawn along by horses on which women are mounted. A spill might mean a broken neck.

(By Underwood & Underwood.)

WAITE HOYT

promising young pitcher, formerly of the Boston Red Sox recently acquired by New York Americans.

ROGERS HORNSBY

of the St. Louis Cardinals, who led his league in batting last season. The New York Nationals have tried to purchase his services for $200,000 and several players thrown in, the largest amount ever offered for a player.

"WALLY" SCHANG

sterling catcher of the Boston Red Sox, who recently came to the Yankees in an exchange of players.

J. L. DUMAS

fireman, second class, who won the heavyweight championship of the Atlantic Fleet, New York, Dec. 1.

